THE DEAD SENATOR.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE FUNERAL

RLACKBURN TO MAKE AN ORATION Over the Remains of Senator Beck-Inter ment to Be at Lexington, Ky.—Dr. Tal-mage on the Dead Statesman. LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4.-The news of

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4.—The news of Senator Beck's death was received with universal regret. The Courier-Journal says:

Mr. Beck was a man of wonderful physical powers and his capacity for hard exacting labor seemed unlimited. He had the sturdy mental force which we look for in a body such as his. For years all his powers were given with noble generosity to the oppressed and unrepresented people. During all the years of darkness and of gloon which followed the war, Mr. Beck had eleven southern states for his constituents. Com-sources, of fine courage; sound in debate and of unbounded value in committee, Mr. Beck's public services have rarely been equalled in the house or senate. His mind was ad with information which was at all times at stored with information which was at all times at his command. Every incident in the political history of his time was familiar to him, and he saw at once the tendency and results of legislative saw at once the tendency and results of legislative experiments. He was not a man of much imaginative power, and his addresses were singularly free from rhetorical figures. Yet he spoke with such earnestness; he had so plainly the powers of a full man, that he was, even in popular assemblages, istened to with profound attention.

The state loses in the death of Senator Beck an adopted son more loyal to her traditions, more faithful to her destinies than many to the manor born. Kentucky has always delighted to honor this man and today she mourns him as a most faithful servant, and a most tehrished leader. His career is known to all men. His long public service, unstained even by the breath of reproach, and rich in all that dignifies political life is a legacy dearer than gold and an example full of inspiration and encouragement. Mr. Beck has outlived all the rancor of partisan contests and died possessed of the esteem alike of friends and enemies.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The remains of Senator Beck have been placed in a casket, and lie in the parlor of the home of Representative W. C. P. Breckinridge, on Capitol Hill. A

W. C. P. Breckinridge, on Capitol Hill. A large number of persons, including most of his senatorial colleagues, called during the day to view the body and tender condolences to Mrs. Goodloe, daughter of the late senator. A large number of telegrams of condolence was also received.

The funeral arrangements have not been finally and definitely determined upon as yet. The Kentucky congressional delegation assumed charge of the remains, and will tomorrow morning finally arrange all details, respect, of course, being paid to the wishes of Mrs. Goodloe.

The delegation met in the democratic caucus room of the senate at 11 o'clock this morning, Senator Blackburn presiding. Most of the time was occupied in recalling recollections of the dead man. It was agreed that Senator Blackburn should formulate the resolutions to be offered in the senate and that the senate should be asked to adjourn over until Wednesday. The funeral is to take place on Tuesday.

Wednesday. The funeral is to take place on Tuesday.

Representative Breckinridge was requested to confer with the speaker and, if possible, secure an adjournment of the house from about 2 o'clock Monday until Wednesday. The delegation favored the remains lying in state in the senate from tomorrow afternoon until the time of services, but Mrs. Goodloe prefers this part of the programme to be omitted and in deference to her wishes the body will remain at Mr. Breckinridge's until just before the funeral service.

funeral service.

It is expected that Senator Blackburn will deliver an oration during the services in the senate. The remains will then be taken to Lexington, Ky., in a special train over the Chesapeake and Ohio road. At Lexington, they will be turned over to Governor Buckner and state officials.

Dr. W. A. Bartlett, of the Presbyterian Dr. W. A. Bartlett, of the Presbyterian church, Lexington, will conduct the services at the grave. They will be very brief, and will take place not later than noon Thursday. Senator Beck's son, who is somewhere in Wyoming, has not yet been heard from. He is probably some distance from a telegraph office and, therefore, will not be able to communicate with his sister until he and the courier sent to find him reach a railroad station.

THE PALL-BEARERS. been absolutely settled upon, but those so far selected are ex-Attorney-General A. H. Garland, Judge L. S. Trimble, formerly representative in congress from the Paducah, Ky. sentative in congress from the Paducan, Ky., district; O. O. Stealey, correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal; Colonel L. Q. Washington; ex-Congressman Philips, B. Thompson, Jr., W. R. Smith, superintendent of the Botanical Gardens, and the long-time friends of the dead senator—Colonel J. Fletcher Johnson, of Kentucky, and Blair Lee, of this city. The active pall-bearers will be capital relicement.

DR. TALMAGE ON SENATOR BECK. BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 4.—In a sermon to-day, Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage used these words:

words:

"And yesterday my beloved friend, James B. Beck, senator of the United States, dropped dead in a Washington depot, one of the most magnificent souls I ever knew. At times, in eloquence a Demosthenes, the foe of all wrong, a terror of all political corruption and a friend of God. How I enjoyed his hospitalities in Kentucky when he took me and showed me all the classic spots around the beautiful Lexington, and talked of things pertaining to our beloved country. "Oh, my, Talmage," said he, "sometimes we public men get worldly and perhaps do not attend to our religious duties as we might, but still the Bible is true, and the only hope for this world is the gift of Lesus Christ. I was brought up under Henry Diffican, of Rothwell, Scotland, and felt the power of his ministry and have felt it always."

DEATH OF BISHOP BORGESS.

End of a Useful Life—Short Sketch of the Bishop.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., May 4.-Bishop Caspa Borgess, who was stricken with paralysis at St. Augustine's deanery recently, died at 1:10 o'clock this morning, aged sixty-two. He had been failing each day, but remained conscious o'clock this morning, aged sixty-two. He had been failing each day, but remained conscious until near the end. Bishop Borgess was born in Kappenberg, Germany, in 1834, but came to this country with his parents while quite young. He received his education for the priesthood in Cincinnati, and for many years was pastor of St. Philomena's church in that city. He was chosen to succeed Bishop Lefevre, who died in 1870. Bishop Borgess's official career in Detroit was a notable and eventful one. He believed in vigorous work and early took steps to strengthen his diocese, both spiritually and financially. In 1875 he promulgated a series of orders in which he required that church or school property then held or to be subsequently acquired, should be deeded to himself in fee simple and not to his successor in office, and that final authority on the contracting of church debts and extension of church buildings should be vested in him. He used his authority greatly to the advantage of the church. During his administration Bishop Borgess succeeded in establishing nine churches in Detroit and his work will be known as memorable. Knowing he was subject to heart disease, Bishop Borgess sent in his resignation, which was in due time acted upon and Rev. John Foley, of Baltimore, chosen to succeed him.

He Is Out of Politics.

ET.

Chattanooga, May 4.—[Special.]—Judge J. A. Wader, of this city, who has been prominently mentioned as the possible republican candidate for governor of Tennessee, stated today for publication that he is out of politics, and will not consent to having his name presented before the republican convention. He states that his large law practice would prevent him from making the race.

ON SOCIAL EQUALITY.

Archbishop Ireland Preaches to the Colored People.

Washington, May 4.—[Special.]—Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., has created a considerable stir by a sermon delivered to co'ored people today at St. Augustine church. It had been avecaged that he would be It had been announced that he would preach on "Social Equality." He said that it was with feelings of pleasure that he came among and enjoyed the privilege at all times to speak to his colored fellow-citizens, for in them he saw a people seeking to obtain their rights. Twenty-five years ago this country was afflicted with the scourge of slavery, and no Christian could look back on that condition of affairs and think of it without feelings of deep shame for humanity. Providence had demanded a change and it came; and since then how great the transformation had been! The question of the race problem was not yet fully solved. It was the subject of discussion on all sides. Repeated solutions had been suggested, but without successful results.

The prollim of the colored brother was a great one, but it could be solved, and speedily. He contended that it was the white people who now stood in need of lessons in charity benevolence, justice and religion, and who had benevolence, justice and religion, and who had permitted unreasonable causes and prejudices to sway them. He was prepared to say that there was no such thing as a color line except in the minds of those whose intellects were clouded by unjust reasoning. The solution of the question was that they should look one another in the face as members of the same family of children, of the same God, and all living under the same teachings of religion, reason and nature; because of the simple accident of color it did not follow that they were to be treated on different lines religiously and

ALL OF THE SAME FAMILY. They were all of the same ancestry, alike, in the possession of souls and being God's children, and it was entirely a matter of accident whether they were black, white on red. Whenever Catholics gave way and yielded to these prejudices, they contradicted the teachings of their hearts as given by God as to equality and fraternity. Let some, if they would, think themselver better they would, think themselver better than colored people, but at least, he said, let Catholics, who had been made to see that all were equal before God, extend the right hand of fellowship to the colored breth-ren, and say that there was not and could not be a color question between Catholies, and that was the true and only solution of the problem. There were men in congress and on the rostrum who babble about the colored man and talk sheer nonsense, and the day was near the rostrum who babble about the colored man and talk sheer nonsense, and the day was near at hand, despite all that had been and was being said, when justice would be done. God's hand was uplifted in behalf of the colored people. The recognition of the colored man was coming, and it could not be put off or retarded. The day was near when prejudiced ones would be ashamed of their action, and when the colored would not be discriminated against in the church, hotel, college and business pursuits.

THE WORK WAS MAPPED OUT.

But Senator Beck's Death May Disarrange

WASHINGTON, May 4.- The death of Senator Beck will cause the postponement for one day of the proceedings in the senate this week. Upon the formal arrangement of the death of Senator Beck a committee to attend the funeral will be appointed, after which the senate will adjourn.

A number of matters of general importance had been assigned to this week for considera-tion, not all of which, however, are likely to come up, much less to be disposed of. The bills for the admission of Idaho and Wyoming are unfinished business until Wednes-day, when the Jones silver bill, reported from the committee on finance, will be the special order. It is not believed the admission bills order. It is not believed the admission bills can be disposed of in two days, and if action on the silver bill should be demanded they will probably go over until a more convenient time. Two things might occur to prevent the consideration of the silver bill. One is the action of the rapphilican cancers, a meeting of which will be republican caucus, a meeting of which will be held between now and Wednesday, when another effort will be made to agree upon a silver measure. Another thing is the report-ing of the army and pension appropriation ills, both of which Mr. Allison, chairman of bills, both of which Mr. Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, says will be ready, and which, under the rules, may be called up for consideration at any time, so that the consideration of the silver bill question this week, while possible, is not probable. Mr. Aldrich, in charge of the Dingley bill, declaring worsted and worsted cloths to be made wool for all purposes of assessing duty thereon, says he will make an effort to have it considered by the senate, probably on Tuesday.

The death of Senator Beck will also disarrange the programme of proceedings in the house. Tomorrow is "suspension day," and effort was to have been made by the managers of the river and harbor appropriation bill to effort was to have been made by the managers of the river and harbor appropriation bill to secure recognition, and pass the measure under a suspension of the rules. The expected adjournment upon the receipt of the information of adjournment by the senate will carry the matter over. The tariff bill, according to the programme, will be taken up Tuesday.

The general debate will begin at once, and is expected to consume at least one week, after which the bill will be discussed by sections and subjected to amendment in detail.

Black's Big Victory.

Decherd, Tenn. May 4.—[Special.]—The Tennessee oratorical contest took place in the capitol Friday night. There were six contests, two each from Sewanee, Vanderbilt and Southwestern Presbyterian university. The medal was won by R. M. Black, Sylvania, Ga., son of the late Senator Black. This is one of the greatest oratorical honors possible, and is especially appreciated by Black's friends, as E. H. Rawlings, of Virginia, and J. Washington Moore, of Tennessee, Vanderbilt, two representatives and Mr. Black's opponents, are speakers of wide reputation in college circles. A great ovation was tendered Mr. Black last night by the students and citizens of Sewanee, and a holiday will be declared by the university in honor of his victory. This is Black's fourth year at the University of the South, being now in the theo-Black's Big Victory. tory. The Sharks Eat Him.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 4.—[Special.]—A horrible story comes from Beaufort, a seaport about fifty miles south of this place. Yesterday as one of the phosphate freight vessels was going to sea a sailor named Jordan tried to desert from the vessel. He jumped overboard while the ship was making its way through Coosaw river, and attempted to swim to the shore, which was not more than 100 yards distant. A boat was lowered and sent after him, but there was no capturing him. A couple of man-eating sharks got ahead of the boat, and the poor man was torn to pieces and eaten up before the boat could reach him. The sailor was a Norwegian, a seaman on board the "Sea Queen," a sailing vessel which had been in port some days, and which was on her way to Liverpool. The Sharks Eat Him.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, May 4.—Futures opened yesterday a little irregular, the chief feature being free offerings for August at 11.86@11.87 under the weak report from Liverpoot; but as these were quickly taken up, there was a quick advance, and the close was steady at about the best figures of the day. There was a strong local "bull" feeling, which is looking to thirteen cents for middling uplands, and there is no resisting the idea, so long as cotton is as scarce as it is. Crop accounts were generally favorable. Cotton on spot was firmer, but not quotably dearer.

A GREAT SUCCESS

WAS THE LABOR DEMONSTRATION

HALF A MILLION WORKMEN IN LINE

Notwithstanding the Great Crowd. Everything Was Done in a Very Orderly Manner.

LONDON, May 4.-Today's labor demonstra ion in Hyde park was a magnificent success and exceeding in point of number and orderly enthusiasm all working-class gatherings since the great reform assemblage in 1886. The splendid organization of the different sections taking part in the processions brought together in the park half a million people who went through their business and dispersed without a single incident occurring of s orderly character.

The leading sections were the trade councils, which included eight groups, representing the leather trades, metal and cabinet-makers, and shipping, clothing, printing, paper and building trades. These bodies, in which were numerous related trades, mustered. in specified districts of the metropolis, in the forenoon and marched, headed by their leaders and with bands and banners, toward the Thames embankment, the central point, whence the marshaled array was ordered to start for the nark

At 2 o'clock the embankment gave no prom ise of any demonstration beyond the rapidly in-creasing masses of sight-seers, but soon after that hour the first column of the procession was seen advancing, with a brave show of banners, toward the National library, and before long the embankment, as far as the eve could reach, was a dense mass of moving columns, all keeping admirable order.

The gigantic procession was timed to start at 3 o'clock, and punctually at that hour it moved off amid thunderous cheering and the blending music of many bands. The route toward the park was along Bridge street, St. James park and Birdcage walk, which were lined with spectators, and masses of artisans joined the paraders on the way until on entering the park! the estimated number of men in

Simultaneously with the appearance in the park of the trades columns, sections of the social demonstration began to enter. Some of them had joined the main body on the Thames embankment, while others marshaled in distant suburbs and marched from different points, converging toward the two platforms in the park especially allotted to socialist

The railway worker's union had also especial processions, some of the groups of which swelled the embankment columns, while others marched isolated toward the platform centers. swelled the embankment columns, white others marched isolated toward the platform centers. The total number taking part in the processions is estimated at 170,000, and these were almost lost in the vastness of the assemblage gathered around the thirteen platforms on which the labor day advocates sheld forth. Among the far-stretching, dense crowd no police were visible. Orders from headquarters to refrain from interfering or co-operating with the organizers of the demonstration, had caused the police to judiciously keep in the background. The tact and prudence of the organizers of the demonstration was further seen in the brevity of the proceedings. After the paraders had formed around the platforms the speaking commenced. Showly, after 4 o'clock resolutions demanding that eight hours be recognized as a day's work, were put and carried amid the acclamations of the multitude, and by 5 o'clock, when the proceed and the content had referred in the teacher had referred in the time the content of the proceedings.

Half a million is a moderate computation of the gathering, the character of which bore everywhere the unmistakable stamp of the solid, respectable artisan classes, the rag-tag and bobtail being conspicuously absent.

A notable feature was that the bands of the trade councils eschewed revolutionary music, playing only popular and national airs. The speakers included Mr. Davitt, Mr. Cunningham Graham, John Burns, Thomas Mann. ham Graham, John Burns, Thomas Mann, Benjamin Tillett, Mrs. Aveling and Annie Besant. By 6 o'clock the park was deserted and the thoroughfares were full of orderly crowds streaming homeward.

At the stands of social democrats, at which all speakers were socialists, there was an audience of 12,000, of whom three-quarters were red sashes. The speeches were moderate in tone. The speakers claimed that the socialists initiated the eight hour movement, and urged their hearers to regard it as the first step toward sewing couplets freaden for the work. ward securing complete freedom for the work-men. Hyndman, who was one of the speakers, apologized for the failure of their brethren on the continent to gather in greater force on May Day. Socialist orators denounced Bradlaugh and Morley.

THE EIGHT-HOUR DEMAND. Chicago Coopers to Quit Work—The Spanish Rioters.

Chicago Coopers to Quit Work—The Spanish Rioters.

Chicago, May 4.—If something unexpected does not occur tomorrow every cooper employed about the packing houses at the stock-yards, with, perhaps, the exception in houses operated by Armour & Co., and Swift & Co., will go out on strike. Their request, they say, is not unreasonable, but was ignored and the result is a determination to quit work.

The Barcelona Rioters.

Madrid, May 4.—At Barcelona the troops were engaged until early this morning dispersing the strikers. It is feared severe measures will be necessary to restore order.

A large socialist meeting was held in this city today addressed by a number of energetic speakers. After adopting appropriate resolutions, a procession was formed. All marched in an orderly manner along the Prado to the residence of Premier Sagasta. The premier received a deputation who presented a petition asking the government to adopt the eight-hour working day and other resolutions adopted by the Paris Workmens' congress.

In reply to the deputation Senor Sagasta said he must refuse to consider the eight-hour schedule. To this the workmen replied that they would use legal means to attain their end, and that if these proved unsuccessful they would resort to force.

Gladstone to the Workingmen.

London, May 3.—Mr. Gladstone has written a letter, which will appear in the enlarged Lloyd's News on Sunday next, in which he exhorts the working classes to consider closely their present position. SAM JONES BRINGS THE CANDI-DATES TOGETHER.

POLITICS IN THE OLD NORTH STATE.

The Great Revival Meetings at Charlotte Attended By the Prominent Politicis Who Wish Each Other Success.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 4.—[Special.]—The Sam Jones meeting just closed here, brought together not only the saints and sinners from every nook and corner throughout thi entire region, but it called together the poli-ticians as well. This is what is known as the "shoe-string congressional district," and it extends from the mountains to the sea, a dis-tance of two hundred miles. The convention to meminate a democratic candidate for congress will be called together the latter part of this month or the first of next. The district is democratic by about 4,000 majority, and on account of this fact a strong fight is being made for the nomination.

On the last day of the Sam Jones meeting seven candidates occupied seats in the taber-nacle and listened to the wonderful Georgia preacher telling of sin and the judgment. Sid B. Alexander, of Mecklenjudgment. Sid B. Alexander, of Mecklenburg county, and ex-president of the North Carolina Farmers' Alliance, was seated directly in front of the evangelist and appeared to be deeply interested. Hon. C. Jones, of Charlotte, was seen away back in the audience enjoying the preacher's wit. Dignified Paul Means, of Cabarrus county, occupied an elevated seat and kept his eye on the speaker. Handsome Charley McDonald, also of Cabarrus, could be seen wiping a stray tear from his cheek as the evangelist grew pathetic. Dave Covington, the silver-tongued orator of Union county, would laugh heartily at the preacher's jokes and James Lagrande, the lawyer-farmer, of Richmond county, would join in the applause, while J. F. Payne, of Robson county, appeared to have other business ou hand. After the close of the service the candidates met on the street, and each wished the other success and promised to do all in their power that could be done honorably to prevent it. Besides the gentlemen named, prevent it. Besides the gentlemen named, Alf Rowland, the present incumbent, is a candidate for renomination, and it is expected that Wilmington will bring out a "dark horse" in the person of Charley Steadman or "Alf" Waddell. The fight is going to be a lively one.

BURKE IN HONDURAS.

Hard Worker, But Reticent Regarding the TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 4.—Mr. Fred Bell, of this city, who has been in Honduras engaged in mining ventures several years, is home on a visit. Mr. Bell, being asked about the operations of Major Burke, the defaulting state treasurer of Louisiana, said:

"In England, while he was a fugitive from justice, Burke interested people and financiers in mining in Honduras, and he succeeded in doing that in spite of the opposition that I feel exile, and in spite of the opposition that I feel doing that in spite of the fact that he was in exile, and in spite of the opposition that I feel certain was placed in his way by detectives who were sent there to thwart and shaddow him. Among those whom he interested in his plans were the Rothschilds and others, who are known perhaps to no one except those directly interested those whom he interested in his plans were the Rothschilds and others, who are known perhaps to no one except those directly interested and myself. That he was able to gain an audience with such persons under the circumstances impressed me as very much in his favor. When he came to Honduras he camped the first night in my camp. I have come to know him pretty well, and I have been favorably impressed with him. He is interested in four large concessions of land, and is doing a thriving business in all of them. He has an office in the capital of the state, and when he is absent he has an agent there. The president of the state and all of the government officials are his warm friends. He attends to all the interests of his mines with the government, and has made friends of all with whom he has any dealings. He has no special supervision over the mining operations. Each mine has a supervisor, and all of them together have about 400 men employed. Mr. Burke attends only to the business of his companies with the government. He is the busiest man in Honduras, and is really working too hard. He is getting old rapidly. He rides over the mountains on mule back * and endures many hardships. When I left there he was trying to secure another concession from the government, and it will be the most important grant ever made it will be the most important grant ever made

It will cost about $300,000 to comply with the conditions imposed by the government—to build a polytechnic institute, etc. "When I left, many persons who were in position to know, told me that Burke would probably get the grant. As to Burke, personally, I could not say anything except in his favor. He is industrious and shrewd, and I think he will make a success in Honduras. Concerning the shortage in his accounts, he says the time has not come for him to explain matters. I think there was something back of it that is not generally known. I also think that he will eventually return to the states; and I think he is working to that end now. In Honduras every one speaks well of him, and of the many persons whom I met in New Orleans, no one spoke other than well of him. What his explanation of the defalcation will be I could not say."

During the morning two clerks of election in Howard township, Conway county, told what they knew about the taking of the ballot-box and the murder of Clayton. In the afternoon James Sater, the man supposed to have discovered the murderer of Clayton, arrived from Jeffersonville, Ind. He was put on the stand and told about the same story, implicating Thomas Hooper as the telegraphed a few days ago from Los Angeles. James Hooper, a young man twenty-three years of age, was examined, and corroborated Norristown, Pa., May 4.—There is considerable excitement here over the announcement made late last night that W. F. Slingluff, cashier of Montgomery National bank. also secretary and treasurer of Montgomery Insurance, Trust and Safe Deposit company, had placed his resignation at the disposal of the directors of those two institutions; also assigned his property to them. Slingluff is said to have made unauthorized investments of funds entrusted to his care. Klein, a young man who has been carrying on a jewelry business here for several months, was arrested last night, and will be taken back to Augusta, Ga., on a charge of seduction. It is charged that he ruined a young lady named Mills several months ago Klein's father, who has been a resi dent of this place for several years, informed the authorities at Augusta of his son's whereabouts. After the arrest the old man said Charles had always been a wayward son, and he wanted him sent to the penitentiary.

Loss on the Baptist church, $10,000; insured for $3,000.

THE SKINNER TRAGEDY

THE VERDICT OF THE CORONER'S JURY IS MURDER.

But Nothing Developes to Clear Up the Mystery of the Shooting of the Un fortunate Man.

A verdict of murder.
Dr. J. C. Avary, coroner of Fulton county, impaneled a jury of inquest on the body of E. K. Skinner, alias J. W. Howard, yesterday.
The jury examined several witnesses, and returned a verdict of murder.
But nothing new has developed that tended in any way to close up the mystery. Major Reese, of the European hotel, was examined, and told what little he knew of the two

The first time their names appear on the register is May 17—M. J. Goldman, Memphis, and J. W. Howard, St. Louis. They then cocupied room 26 together, and remained about a On April 23d they again registered, M. J. Goldman, Memphis, Tenn., and J. W. Howard, St. Louis. This time they remained in room 26, as before, for two or three days.

THIS IS THE MYSTERY, that they should have been here off and on since the middle of April, and nobody knew anything about them.

The same key fitted both valises, but there was nothing in either valise that would furnish clue. There were two soft hats wadded up in Goldman's valise, and a number of articles of wearing apparel.

During all the time they were together they appeared to be the best of friends. Both were quiet, Skinner being rather retiring in his manners.

Skinner returned and registered Friday, while Goldman did not return until Saturday, when the two met at Bréitenbucher's saloon, from whence they went to the hotel, the tragedy occurring almost immediately after-tragedy occurring almost immediately afterwards.

The chamber-maid, Mary Muse, told her story of the two shots, one of which proved fatal, the other penetrating the wall near where Skinner was standing.

THE ONLY MAN WHO KNEW HIM,

H. Siftey, was before the jury, and said he knew Skinner as Jim Howard, a quiet, respectable man, and he had never known any crookedness about him. He knew him as a circus man, but had lost sight of him for a long time, and had not seen him until they met Saturday.

The body was conveyed to Patterson's undertaking establishment, and after a verdict was made of murder, the jury adjourned.

Mr. Patterson will embalm the body, and will use every effort to clear up the mystery. The dead man had about twenty-eight dollars on his nerson.

o'clock Saturday, and asked for instructions as to the body. Up to a late hour last night he had received no reply.

IS THIS GOLDMAN?

Mr. Oliver, a news butcher on the East Tennessee road, says he knows Goldman well, and that he was for a long while a news butcher on the road. He says that Goldman will weigh something over two hundred pounds.

Mr. Barrett, who lives over on Mitchell street, says he knows Goldman, and saw him Saturday morning. Mr. Waldrop, who keeps a saloon on Mitchell, near the East Tennessee depot, also knows him; but none of the three knew anything of the causes that led to the killing of Skinner.

The dying man said Saturday, among other things, that—"He shot me like a dog. Didn't give me any showing at all. I had done a great deal for that man, but he has killed me."

DEMANDING AN INVESTIGATION.

By some person it was stated that just before Skinner died he said: "Send for Denny, Denny is the man that shot me!"

That fact was published, and yesterday afternoon J. A. Denny returned from, Macon and called on Chief Connolly to have the matter investigated.

He said that he had known both Goldman called on Chief Connolly to have the matter investigated.

He said that he had known both Goldman and Skinner, or Howard, the latter for three months. He occupied room No. 30, where the murdered man died, for two or three days some time ago, and Saturday morning went to the room and dressed, leaving several articles of clothing in the bureau drawer.

At 11 o'clock, however, he took the train for Macon, so he says and stopped at the Brown.

Macon, so he says, and stopped at the Brown house. He was there when he learned of the fact that suspicion had been cast on him by the last words of the dying man. He returned at once to the city, and after he told Chief Connolly of the matter the latter went around with him to the European hotel. Major Reese, the clerk, Mary Muse, the chambermaid, and a little boy who knew Goldman, all saw him, and stated most positively that he was not the man with Skinner, or Howard, when he was abort.

This was satisfactory, and Mr. Denny went about his business. Mr. Sifley knew him, and also stated that he was not the man.
Mr. Denny sent a dispatch to Mr. Doane, of Sherman, Texas, last night explaining the matter and clearing up his side of the question.

RALKIGH, N. C., May 4.—[Special.]—Congressman Reyburn, of Pennsylvania, will purchase Bald Head, or Smith's Island, at the mouth of the Cape Fear river. The island contains five thousand acres, and has thirteen miles of superb sea beach. The price paid for it is $22,500. A thirteen mile boulevard will be laid out, encircling the island, while broad avenues will traverse it. A hundred thousand dollar hotel and cottages will be built, with boat-houses and bath-houses, with military parade ground like that at Atlantic City, New Jersey. It is a pet project of Reyburn's. He intends to make the place both a summer and winter resort. It will be a formidable rival of any on the coast.

Death of Colonel Sloss.

Birmingham, Ala., May 4.—Colonel James W. Sloss died at 10 o'clock tonight. He was one of the foremost pioneers of Birmingham. He was for many years president of the South and North Alabama railroad, which he helped to build and which alone made North Alabama development possible. He was the head of the Sloss Iron company, which first proved iron-making here to be profitable. Some four years ago he sold this great property for $1,000,000 cash, since which time he has lived in the enjoyment of his fortune. He gave large sums of money to the churches and for charitable purposes.

Life Has Seized Upon Hawkinsville-The Coming of a Railroad-Real Estate Advancing.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., May 4 .- [Special.]-Hawkinsville is on the biggest boom she has ever enjoyed. This one is of such proportions that past booms sink into insignificance, and It is solid too. The Hawkinsville and Florida Southern railroad is assured, and in a few months this road will be in operation through the finest pine timber section in the through the finest pine timber section in the world.

The projectors of the road asked that the people of Hawkinsville take stock to the extent of $25,000. This amount was taken in a few days and now several thousand dollars above the sum requested have been subscribed. This shows what great faith the people have in the enterprise, but it does not stop here.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET.

The real estate market, which has been dulfor the past year or two, has become very active, and property is changing hands on all sides. A few weeks ago a recently formed lyndicate purchased a seventy-three-acre tract of land for $60 an acre. This land, which is a mile from the court-house, two months ago could not be sold for $25. Last Saturday, nine half-acre building lots, a mile from the court-house, were sold at $125 per lot. These are only examples of what is taking place every day, and the speculators will reap a harvest, for while the boom is young it is healthy and growing daily.

The Empire and Dublin railroad has been entryeyed from Hawkinsville to Grovania, on the Georgia Soutlern and Florida, and a grading force will begin work in a few days.

MANUFACTURINO PROSPECTS.

The manufacturing fever has struck the town, and carpenters will not be able to romplain of a scarcity of work, for this summer a guano factory, a canning factory and an ice factory will be built, and the moneyed men are discussing a cotton factory. The Bowen brick yard will be in full blast by the middle of May, turning out brick by the millions. The Orem shingle factory is turning out one hundred thousand shingles perday, and yet that is not enough, for there is such a demand that the proprietor comemplates enlarging his plant.

There are other enterprises being discussed, and as the plans assume definite shape The Constitution readers will be kept fully posted.

MERCHANTS OF GEORGIA

Can Take Heart From a Reply About Certain Action of the Railroads.

Macon, Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—Recently the board of trade of Macon passed a resolu-tion requesting the Southern Railway and Steamship association to rescind an order which it passed that buyers may not inspect goods before receiving them from the railgoods before receiving them from the railroads. This action of the railroads was considered arbitrary and unjust, and the boards of trade of Macon, Savannah, Augusta and other cities have united in asking a repeal of the order. It seems, however, from the following correspondence in the Johnal of Commerce that the action of the association cannot stand in the courts. The Constitution can by publishing this information, give much satisfaction to the merchants of Georgia. The Journal of Commerce is authoritative:

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., April 19, 1890.—Editors of the Journal of Commerce:
On consignments such as grain, meats, etc., to order, notify, etc., where the bill of lading is attached to the draft, it has always been the custom at this point to examine the goods before taking up the draft and bill of lading. Recently a few cars of wheat that were damaged (though bought as sound goods) were rejected after examination and the drafts and bill of lading returned unpaid and drawer notified of the cause. They (the consignors) now threaten to sue the railroad company, claiming that they had no right to allow even an examination of the cars without surrender of the bill of lading. We would like to know your opinion as to washer such claim would hold good in law.

Suit for $5,000. Suit for $5,000.

Macon, Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—Several months ago the firemen on the Southwestern railroad, W. W. Starr, superintendent, went out on a strike. Later Superintendent Starr had W. H. Holmes and others arrested and put in jail on the charge of obstructing trains. Nothing was done with Holmes by the courts. Yesterday Holmes's attorney, M. G. Bayne, filed a suit against the Central Railroad and Banking company for five thousand dollars ($5,000) damages for malicious prosecution.

Mr. Bunwoody May Be Bead.

Mr. Dunwoody May Be Dead.

Macon, Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—Ere this is read in print, Mr. William E. Dunwoody, Jr., of Macon, may be dead, at Savannah. where he went a short time since for the henefit of his health. His wife and son and other relatives are at his bedside. Mr. Dunwoody is in the grocery business in this city, and is highly esteemed by all who know him. Prayers were offered in the First Presbyterian church today for him. He is a son of Dr. William E. Dunwoody, a prominent physician of this city, and who formerly resided in Marietta.

Assault with Intent to Murder Macon, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—Yesterday Officer O. Pry arrested Peter Williams, colored, on a charge of assault with intent to murder at Millen some time ago. Today an officer came for Williams, and he will be carried back to Mil en. Williams is said to have served a term of two in the positoniary. term or two in the penitentiary.

Personal. Macon. Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—Miss Lula rown, one of Macon's most beautiful and ac-omplished young ladies, is visiting in Waynesboro.

Miss Emma Faulk, of New York, is visiting Mr.

D. Abraham's family.

Misses Laura and Mabel Seay, of Rome, have returned home after a pleasant visit to Miss Essie Dietz. They made many friends and admirers in this city. Captain R. E. Park, of Macon, has been elected one of the trustees of the Georgia Teachers' assoone of the trustees of the Georgia Teachers' association.

Mr. George F. Payne expects to leave tonight for Washington city, to attend the convention for the revision of the United States pharmacopæia. This convention meets every ten years, and this will be the first time Georgia has been represented since the war. The Georgia delegates appointed at the recent state pharmaceutical convention are George F. Payne, of Macon, H. R. Slack, of La-Grange, and R. H. Land, of Augusts.

Mr. Henry Horne has returned from Indian Springs sick. Recently he had a prolonged and very dangerous filness, and he exerted binself too much in business after his convalescence, and has taken a relapse. His physicians prescribe absolute rest for some time to come, and he will doubtless go north. Mr. Horne is Macon's meet progressive and useful citizen.

FERTILE CALHOUN

WILL MAKE AN EXHIBITION OF HER RESOURCES,

And Sid Cook Will Be Found in the Lead Giving Direction to Affairs-Trial of Offenders-Political Driftwood.

MORGAN Ga. May 4 .- [Special.]-The citizens of this, Calhoun county, met at the court-house here Friday, 26th instant. A temporary organization was effected by calling the . J. John Beck to preside as chairman and W. W. Davis, secretary. Judge Beck ex-plained the object of the meeting to be the in-auguration of a fair association for the county and in his usual lucid and able way, advocated the taking of steps to hold a fair during next fall. A resolution, "that a fair be held and that the meeting proceed to effect a permanent fair association," was unanimously thusiastically adopted.

Hon. J. L. Boynton, judge of our county court, and by the way, one of the best in Georgia, was elected president; Judge Beck and Captain P. E. Boyd, vice-presidents; W. H. Parkins, of novel fame, superintendent and director-general; Editor Sid J. Cook, of the Courier, who has been the first and chief movant in the matter, secretary; J. S. Clements, M. D., treasurer and an executive committee of one from each militia district. These officers at a future time will meet and perfect arrangements for holding the fair, selecting time, place, etc. A FERTILE COUNTY.

This is one of the finest counties in the state and a fair will do a great good in many ways. The supposition held by many that this is a piney woods county, filled with ponds and poor and unhealthy, is an erroneous one indeed. It is true that we have a great deal fine pine timber, but we also have as fine oak and hickory lands as there are on earth, and the outsider, like the writer here of, earth, and the outsider, like the writer here or, when he first came here six years ago, was astonished as he passed over the hard, red roads and looked on either hand at vast forests of original oak and hickory and stretches of broad acres of strong red land upon which king cotton waved his sceptre, surrounded by fields of orain and corn. to bow obesiance and fat to bow obesiance and fat grain and corn, to bow o porkers to grunt his laudits! RIOTERS CONVICTED.

RIOTERS CONVICTED.

The regular monthly session of our county court convened, with Judge J. L. Boynton presiding. The time of the court was consumed in the trial of four of the parties charged with riot here on the 28th of January last. The trial resulted in the acquittal of two—Mingo Gnatt and Henry Holland—and the conviction of two—Alex Hudnell and Jim Williams—who were sentenced to a fine of $40 and $38, or twelve months on the chaingang. ing. Judge Boynton's conduct of these cases has Judge Boynton's conduct of these cases has been admirable. His charges to the juries in the four cases tried would compare favorably with any ever delivered from any judicial bench, being lucid, learned, forcible and impartial. With this term expired the official connection of the Hon. Lem G. Cartledge with the court as solicitor general. He has been in this court as judge and solictor for a number of years, and never had people a worthier, more efficient and fearless officer. He is succeeded by Albert S. Johnston, of Arlington, who, though young, has quite Arlington, who, though young, has quite a reputation for ability.

THE POLITICAL DRIFT.

The political cauldon is beginning to bubble here also, and candidates, not only for the legislature, but the various county offices, are beginning to "smile and shake hands". Those rest receivers the province of most prominently mentioned for the next legislature are Judge A. J. Monroe, Dick W. Davis and Sid J. Cook. Judge Monroe rep-Davis and Sid J. Cook. Judge Monroe represented the county a few years ago and made a fine representative, proving himself able, faithful and successful. No man has more friends than Judge Monroe, and if he offers for the place, his opponent will not be borne to the capital "on lowery beds of ease." Dick W. Davis is the young Primus Jones among the farmers of the county. He is a young man of fine family, fine presence, and fine ability, a successful farmer, energetic and brainy, he would be a representative of whom any county might be proud.

A MAN OF PLUCK. Editor Sid J. Cook has already made for him-Editor Sid J. Cook has already made for himself a public reputation for braininess and brilliancy that is enviable. Sid Cook deserves much at the hands of the people not only of this but surrounding counties. Thrown upon his own resources in early life, he took charge of the Calhoun County Courier, and by almost superhuman pluck and endeavor has built it up into one of the most successful and best weekly papers in the state, and no paper can rise and succeed but by conforming a proportional bound for each the most successful and best weekly papers in the state, and no paper can rise and succeed but by conferring a proportional benefit on the section in which it is published and circulated, and truly no man in this section can rise up and truthfully claim superior service to the people generally than Sid J. Cook. Though young in years yet old in that experience nec-essary to a competent and safe legislator, and young in years yet old in that experience necessary to a competent and safe legislator, and withal, possessed with sufficient ability, address, integrity and pluck, the people of Calhoun county will have to look long and closely before finding a better man to send to the next general assembly than Editor Sid J. Cook.

AN INTERCHANGE OF SHOTS.

One turpentiue negro shot another in the knee on yesterday, at William Burg's, near here. The wound was a bad one, though not considered fatal. These negroes—known in this section as "turpentine and lie niggers"—shoot and cut each other so often that to report all such occurrences would require a doz

He Takes His Text from Job 19:20: "I am Escaped With the Skin of My Teeth," and Preaches an Eloquent Sermon.

BROOKLYN, May 4.—After the long-metre doxology and appropriate hymns had been sung by the congregation, in the Academy of Music, and prayer had been offered, Dr. Talmage preached on "Narrow Escapes," taking as his text Job 19: 20. "I am escaped with the skin of my teeth." Following is his ser-

Job had it hard. What with boils and bereavements and bankruptcy, and a fool of a wife, he wished he was dead; and I do not blame him. His flesh was gone, and his bones were dry. His teeth wasted away until noth-ing but the enamel seemed left. He cries out, "I am escaped with the skin of my teeth."
There has been some difference of opinion about this passage. St. Jerome and Schultens and Doctors Goode and Poole and Barnes about this passage. St. Jerome and Schultens, and Doctors Goode and Poole and Barnes, have all tried their forcers on Job's teeth. You deny my interpretation and say: "What did Job know about the enamel of the teeth?" He knew everything about it. Dental surgery is almost as old as the earth. The mummies of Egypt, thousands of years old, are found today with gold filling in their teeth. Ovid and Horace and Solomon and Moses wrote about these important factors of the body. To other provoking complaints, Job, I think, has added en exasperating toothache, and putting his hand against the inflamed face he says: "I am escaped with the skin of my teeth."

A very narrow escape, you say, for Job's body find soul, but there are thousands of men who make just as narrow escape for their soul. There was a time when the partition between them and ruin was no thicker than a tooth's enamel: but as Job finally escaped, so have they. Thank God! Thank God!

Paul expresses the same idea by a different figure when he says that some people are "saved as by fire." A vessel at sea is in flames. You go to the stern of the vessel. The boats have shoved off. The flames advance; you can endure the heat no longer on your face. You slide down on the side of the vessel, and hold on with your fingers, until the forked tongue of the fire begins to lick the back of your hand, and you feel that you must fall, when one of the lifeboats comes back, and the passengers say they think they have room for one more. The boat swings under you—you drop into it—you are saved. So some men are pursued by temptation until they are partially consumed, but, after all, get off—"saved as by fire." But I like the figure of Job a little better than that of Paul, because the pulpit has not worn it out; and I want to show you, if God will help, that some men make narrow escape for their souls, and are saved as "with the skin of their teeth."

It is as easy for some people to look to the cross as for you to look to this pulpit. Mild, want to show you, if God will help, that some men make narrow escape for their souls, and are saved as "with the skin of their teeth."

It is as easy for some people to look to the cross as for you to look to this pulpit. Mild, gentle, tractable, loving, you expect them to become Christians. You go over to the store and say, "Grandon joined the church yesterday." Your business comrades say, "That is just what might have been expected; he always was of that turn of mind." In youth, this person whom I describe was always good. He never broke things. He never laughed when it was improper to laugh. At seven, he could sit an hour in church, perfectly quiet, looking neither to the right hand nor to the left, but straight into the eyes of the minister, as though he understood the whole, discussion about the eternal decrees. He never upset things nor lost them, He floated into the kingdom of God so gradually that it is uncertain just when the matter was decided.

Here is another one, who started in life with an uncontrollable spirit. He kept the nursery in an uproar. His mother found him walking on the edge of the house-roof to see if he could balance himself. There was no horse toat he dared not ride—no tree he could not climb. His boyhood was a long series of predicaments; his manhood was reckless; his mid-life very wayward. But now he is converted, and you go over to the store and say, "Arkwright joined the church yesterday." Your friends say, "It is not possible! You must be joking." You say: "No: I tell they the truth. He joined the church." Then you reply, "There is hope for any of us if old Arkwright has become a Christian!" In other words, we will admit that it is more difficult for some men to accept the gospel than for others.

I may be preaching to some who have cut loose from churches and Bibles and Sundays, and who have come in here with no intention of becoming Christians themselves, but just to see what is going on; and yet you may find yourself escaping, before you leave this house, as "with the skin of wind is in the right direction, the gospel net is strong. Oh thou who didst help Simon and Andrew to fish, show us today how to cast the net on the right side of the ship!

Some of you, in coming to God, will have to run against sceptical notions. It is useless for run against sceptical notions. It is useless for people to say sharp and cutting things to those who reject the Christian religion. I cannot say such things. By what process of temptation or trial or betrayal you have come to your present state, I know not. There are two gates to your nature—the gate of the head, and the gate of the head. gates to your nature—the gate of the head, and the gate of the heart. The gate of your head is locked with bolts and bars that an archangel could not break, but the gate of your heart swings easily on its hinges. If I assaulted your body with weapons, you would meet me with weapons, and it would be sword-stroke for sword-stroke, and wound for wound, and blood for blood; but if I come and knock at the door of yeur house, you open it, and give me the best seat in your parlor. If I should come at you now with an argument, you would answer me with an argument; if with sarcasm, you would answer me with sarcasm, then I come and knock at the door of your heart, you open it and say: "Come in, my brother, and tell me all you know about Christ and heaven."

I come and knock at the door of your heart, you open it and say. "Come in, my brother, and tell me all you know about Christ and heaven."

Listen to two or three questions: Are you as happy as you used to be when you believed in the truth of the Christian religion? Would you not have you children travel on in the road in which you are now travelling? You had a relative who professed to be a Christian, and was thoroughly consistent, living and dying in the faith of the Gospel. Would you not like to live the same quiet life, and die the same properties of the comfortable in old age to be leve in something relative to the future, and to have a faith in some system that proposes to save. I am free to confershe in old age to believe in something relative to the future, and to have a faith in some system that proposes to save. I am free to confess that I would be happier if I could exercise the simple and beautiful faith that is possessed by many whom I know. I am not willingly out of the church or out of the faith. My state of uncertainty is one of the review of the confortable in old age to believe in something scene, after which here is nothing. We had the subject in the work of the subject in the work of the subject is an isolated to the church as the closing scene, after which here is nothing. We had the subject is subject to the faith. My state of uncertainty is one of the which of use is safer?

Let me also ask whether your trouble has not been that you confounded Christianity with the inconsistent character of some who profess it? You are a lawyer. In your profession there are mean and dishonest men. I swarp and the subject is the work of the church as they go in and sit at the combinating against the law? You are a doctor. There are mean and dishonest men. I swarp and the subject is the travel of the church as they go in and sit at the combinating against the law? You are a doctor. There are mean and dishonest men. I swarp and the subject of the church as they go in and sit at the combinating against the law and the property of the pass week's inconsistential to take the tributes. You have to take the tributes are an amount of the take such a many's life as a position of the take such a have to take the tributes are an amount of the take such as the property of the take such as the property of the take the tributes as specimen of an American ship. It is time that we draw a line betweet religion and the fraities of those who profess it.

Do you not feel that the Bible, take it all in all, is about the best book that the world has ever seen? Do you know any book that has as much in it? Do you not think, upon the world, that its influence has been beneficent? I ward you. In one hand I had sever seen? The you not think, upon the ward you. In one hand I had sever seen in the other I have nothing. This Bible in one hand I will surrender forever just as soon as in my other hand you can put a book that its better. Today I invite you back into the good old-fashioned religion of your fathers—to the God whom they wroshipped, to the Bible they read, to the promises on which they lung their oternal expectations. You have not been the property of the promise on which they are also be happy a minute until you swing back.

Again: There may be some of you who, in the attempt after a Christian life, will have to run against powerful passions and appetites. Perhaps it is a disposition to anger that you have to contend against; and perhaps while in a very serious mood, you hear of something that makes you foel that you must swear or die. I know a Christian man who was once such a such as a suc

There are men who have been capsized of evil passions, and capsized mid-ocean, and they are a thousand miles away from any shore of help. They have for years been trying to dig their way out. They have been digging away, and digging away, but they can never be delivered unless they will hoist some signal of distress. However weak and feeble it may be, Christ will see it, and bear down upon the helpless craft, and take them on board; and it will be known on earth and in heaven how narrowly they escaped—"escaped as with the skin of their teeth."

There are others who in attempting to come to God, must run between a great many business perplexities. If a man go over to business perplexities. If a man go over to business perplexities. If a man go over to diven for religion: but how shall you find time for religions contemplation when you are driven from sunrise to sunset, and have been for five years going behind in business, and are frequently dunned by creditors whom you cannot pay, and when, from Monday morning until Saturday night, you are dodging bills that you cannot meet? You walk day by day in uncertainties that have kept your brain on fire for the past three years. Some with less business troubles than you have gone crazy. The clerk has heard a noise in the back counting-room, and gone in, and found the chief man of the firm a raving maniac; or the wife has heard the bang of a pistol in the back parlor, and gone in, stumbling over the dead body of her husband—a suicide. There are in this house today three hundred men pursued, harassed, trodden down, and scalped, of business perplexities, and which way to turn next they do not know. Now God will not be hard on you. He knows what obstacles are in the way of your being a Christian, and your first effort in the right direction He will crown with success. Do not let Satan, with cotton bales and kegs and hogsheads and counters and stocks of unsalable goods block up your way to heaveu. Gather up all your energies. Tighten the girdle about your loins. Take an agon from His government, and hence all these outrages, and all these woes. God is good. For many hundreds of years He has been coaxing the world to come back to Him; but the more he has coaxed, the more violent have men been in their resistance, and they have stepped back and stepped back until they have dropped into ruin.

Try this God, ye who have had the bloodhounds after you, and who have thought that God had forgotten you. Try Him, and see if He will not help. Try Him, and see if He will not pardon. Try Him, and see if He will not save. The flowers of spring have no bloom so sweet as the flowering of Christ's affections. The sun hath no warmth compared with the glow of His heart. The waters have no refreshment like the fountain that will slake the thirst of thy soul. At the moment the reindeer stands with his lip and nostril thrust in the cool mountain torrent the hunter may be coming through the thicket. Without crackling a stick under his foot, he comes close by the stag, aims his gun, draws the trigger, and the poor thing rears in its death agony and falls backward, its antlers crashing on the rocks; but the panting heart that drinks from the water-brooks of God's promise shall never be fatally wounded, and shall never die.

This world is a poor portion for your soul, oh business man! An eastern king had graven on his tomb two fingers, represented as sounding upon each other with a snap, and under them the motto, "All is not worth that." Apicius Cœlius hanged himself because his steward informed him that he had only eighty thousand pounds sterling left. All of this world's riches make but a small in-that." Apicius Cœlius hanged himself because his steward informed him that he had only eighty thousand pounds sterling left. All of this world's riches make but a small inheritance for a soul. Robespierre attempted to win the applause of the world; but when he was dying, a woman came rushing through the crowd, crying to him, "Murderer of my kindred, descend to hell, covered with the curses of every mother in France!" Many who have expected the plaudits of the world have died under its Anathema Maranatha.

Oh, find your peace in God. Make one strong pull for heaven. No half-way work will do it. There sometimes comes a time on shipboard when everything must be sacrificed to save the passengers. The cargo is nothing, the rigging nothing. The captain puts the trumpet to his lips and shouts, "Cut away the mast!" Some of you have been tossed and driven, and you have, in your effort to keep the world, wellnigh lost your soul. Until you have decided this matter let everything else go. Overboard with all those other anxieties and burdens! You will have to drop the sails of your pride and cut away the mast. With one earnest cry for help, put your cause into the hands of Him who helped Paul out of the breakers of Melita, and who, above the shrill blast of the wrathiest tempest that ever blackened the sky or shook the ocean, can hear the faintest imploration for mercy.

I shall go home today feeling that some of you, who have considered your case as hopeless, will take heart again, and that, with a blood-red earnestness, such as you have never experienced before you will start for the good land of the gospel—at last to look back, saying: "What a great risk I ran! Almost lost, but saved! Just got through, and no more! Escaped by the skin of my teeth."

A Symptom is Not a Disease.

A Symptom is Not a Disease The suffering rheumatic would look incredu-lous if told his rheumatism was not a disease. Also the sufferer from catarrh, with his sore, tender and exuding nostrils, if told catarrh was but a symptom. Yet such it is, in fact. The disease from which a man or woman suffers who has rheumatism or catarrh is blood ois on. How did the poison get into the blood? From various causes; colds, exposure, indigestion, contagion, etc., may have been the cause. No matter, your blood is impure, and cause. No matter, your blood is impure, and you will suffer just so long as this great stream of life is clogged with particles of impurity. Then why not strike at the root or cause of your rheumatism or catarrh by annihilating the enemies of good health that exist in your blood. This can be done by using Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla. Its alterative virtue will quickfy cleanse the blood of every impurity, and thousands have thus by its use been permanently cured of rheumatism and catarrh. No other remedy in the world acts so powerfully and yet so harmlessly as a blood purifier. It conquers as if by magic all tendency to eruptive, irritating and painful ailments.

Wonders

Are wrought by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor in restoring gray hair to its original color, promoting a new growth, preventing the hair from falling, keeping it soft, silky, and abundant, and the scalp cool, healthy, and free from dandruff or humors. The universal testimony is that this preparation has no equal as a dressing, and is, therefore, indispensable to every well-furnished toilet.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recom-mend any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair to use Aver's Hair Vigor as dressing." - Mrs. Lydia O. Moody, East Pittston, Me.

"Some time ago my wife's hair began to come out quite freely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

not only prevented my wife from becoming bald, but it also caused an entirely new growth of hair. I am ready to certify to this statement before a justice of the peace."—H. Hulsebus, Lewisburgh, Iowa.

"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair all came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as my physicians ordered, but failed to produce a growth of hair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by druggists, and all alike fell short of accomplishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of any similar preparation now on the market."

Now for the Elephant.

The elephant fund will be a success. There is no doubt about that.

Everybody wants a big elephant at Grant's park-an elephant big enough to be an attraction, and tame enough to please the shildren. If we can't get one as big as Jumbo, why, then, we'll compromise and get one as big as old Bolivar. And if you've ever seen old Bolivar a-parading through these streets at the head of the Forepaugh herd, you know mighty well he is no dwarf.

We don't want any runt elephant-none of the stunted variety. Will just compromise and get one as big as old Bolivar and as gentle as a Jersey calf.

In order to make matters lively, and to bush the fund along before the weather gets loo hot, we hereby appoint as special agents of this enterprise every wide-a-wake boy and girl in the town of Atlanta and in all the surburbs. In this way, you see, we'll have agents in all the schools and at all the picnics-as energetic an army of hustlers as can be found anywhere.

The youngsters are to be well paid for their work, too. When the fund is raised, as it will be during the next few days, the elephant will be the property of the boys and girls of Atlanta, and it will be the first time, so far as we know, that the boys and rirls of a town have ever owned a suremough elephant.

Here are instructions to agents: Begin this morning and collect twenty-five cents from every person you meet. Just say it is for the elephant fund, and the thing is done. But if it should accidentally happen that any man or woman, for any reason whatever, refuses to contribute, promptly report the name or names to THE CONSTITUTION. The name or names will then be reported by THE CONSTITUTION to Miles Turpin. Dr. Sid Holland and Whack Bailey, who compose the Supreme Elephant committee of arbitration, and after one or two examples have been made of avaricious persons, we warrant there'll be no more refusals to contribute twenty-five cents.

Let a beginning be made today. Let the children get to work today. Those who want to add to the attractions of Grant's park and give the youngsters pleasure, are requested to send their contributions to THE Constitution office, where they will be duly acknowledged.

The Cotton Movement.

The New York Financial Chronicle, in its weekly review of the cotton movement, says that for the week ending last Friday night the total receipts have reached 16,586 bales, against 19,330 bales last week and 20,981 bales the previous week, making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1889. 5,700,969 bales, against 5,417,170 bales for the same period of 1888-9, showing an increase since September 1, 1889, of 283,799 bales.

The exports for the week reach a total of 43,172 bales, of which 26,616 were to Great Britain, 2,880 to France and 13,676 to the rest of the continent. The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 493,900 bales. For immediate delivery the total sales foot up 8,092 bales, including 5,123 for export and 2,969 for consumption.

The imports into continental ports have been 45,000 bales. There is an increase in the cotton in sight of 148,887 bales as compared with the same date of 1889, an increase of 24,887 bales as compared with the corresponding date of 1888 and a decrease of 106,338 bales as compared with 1887.

The old interior stocks have decreased during the week 10,523 bales, and are tonight 2,442 bales more than at the same period last year. The receipts at the same towns have been 3,075 bales less than the same week last year, and since September 1st the receints at all the towns are 19,056 bales more than for the same time in 1888-89.

The total receipts from the plantations since September 1, 1889, are 5,757,393 balos: In 1888-89 were 5,471,013 bales; in 1887-88 were 5,464,323 bales. Although the receipts at the outports the past week were 16,536 bales, the actual movement from plantations was only 5,371 bales, the balance being taken from the stocks at the interior towns. Last year the receipts from the plantations for the same week were 16,370 bales and for 1888 they were 5,020 bales. The increase in amount in sight, as compared with last year, is 288,254 bales, the excess as compared with 1887-88 is 360,741 bales and the gain over 1886-87 reaches 782,118 bales.

The Chronicle says that the speculation in cotton for future delivery at the New York market had a very buoyant opening for the week under review, turning largely upon the speculation in silver, but feeling lo some extent the low temperature and heavy rains at the south. There was a sharp advance on Saturday. Monday opened a little weak, but quickly rallied on the predictions of a much greater advance in silver. Most of the months of this crop touched 11.99c., September sold at 11.42c. and October at 10.91c., with an active business in "ie winter months. But sellers met the advance with much more freedom than in some time past, and on Tuesday, silver failing to advance, prices declined.

On Wednesday the market was very unsettled, but Thursday saw a fresh decline in response to a sharp reduction in Liverpool values. Many leading bulls lost courage and unloaded pretty freely. The better weather at the south on Wednesday caused a great falling off in the buying for the next crop, September alone showing any considerable business In the last hour Thursday the better spot market and reports from Washington indicating the early passage of a silver bill gave renewed strength to cotton futures. Friday there was a general advance of three to five points, but the market was dull, except a moderate buying of August options. Cotton on the spot was marked up 1-16c. on Monday and down 1-16c. on Tuesday. There has been a pretty fair business for export and home consumption, and Thursday th decline of Tuesday was recovered. The Chronicle's telegraphic reports from the south are in the main of a favorable tenor. In a few districts of Texas, however, there has been rather too much rain, overflowing lowlands. Planting is generally making good progress, except where lands are indundated, and in some sections cotton is up and developing well.

The Traveling Men.

THE CONSTITUTION welcomes the South ern 'Travelers' association to Atlanta this morning and earnestly hopes its session will be one of the brightest chapters in its history.

The drummer is one of the most potent elements of a successful city, and the hard work he is continually doing entitles him to a season of rest, recreation and enjoyment. Atlanta sends out more drummers than any city in the south, and every one of the number works in season and out of season for the benefit of Atlanta.

Can any one calculate the great good At lanta has realized from her drummers?

And now that they have gathered in Atlanta from all over the south, Atlanta can and will show her appreciation of their devotion to the city. It is peculiarly appropriate for the business houses not only to give their employes the week, but to give their time to make the session so successful that it will never be forgotten.

Atlanta business then know the worth of the drummers and will see them through this week.

Constantly away from home, deprived of every pleasure, he deserves an occasional ovation; so let us all unite and make the week a happy one for the members of the

There Is No Elixir of Life.

Signor Succi, who has just finished one of his ferty-day fasts in London, has disappointed his friends.

The claim made at first by the signor wa that he had discovered an African herb which enabled a man to do without food for a long period. He now says nothing about it, and the scientists who watched his fast say that he depended upon his powers of endurance.

For ages wise men have hunted for the elixir of life. The stimulating properties of coffee, tea, the betel nut, coca, and various other things, led them to believe that some perpetual life-sustainer would at last be found. In recent years a learned Belgian professor declared that common salt would keep a man alive for an indefinite period.

The truth is, there is no elixir of life. It has been wisely ordered that we should not tarry long enough on our mundane stage to lag superfluous, or be in the way of others. The trooping generations must pass away to make room for others, and it is better so.

Signor Succi is simply a fakir or a freak Such men are the natural enemies of the butcher and the baker, and are no benefit to the world. The all-round man, who is at his best, eats his three meals a day in the old-fashioned way, and is all the better for it. The reformer who advises us to live on air is a fraud.

A South-Hating Newspaper. The Chicago Tribune charges sectionla animosity upon the southern senators who voted against the world's fair bill. It hopes that this feeling is limited to "the old plantation lords and is not found among the representatives of the new south talked about by

We understand the Tribune. It is a south-hating newspaper. It attacked Grady living, and quotes Grady dead. It was against the south in war, and is against the south in peace. Never does it speak approvingly of any move or enterprise in the south unless it can serve a sectional or a partisan purpose by so doing. The old south and the new south are ineparable. Both spoke through Mr. Grady. Both voted against Chicago when the world's fair bill was up, but now that the question is settled both will be on hand at the big show. The old plantation lords, and the young ones, too, propose to make an ex hibit that will astonish the world, and a few little flings from a south-hating newspaper will not hold them back.

An Old Story.

A young man stood in a New York courtoom, the other day, to answer the charge of embezzlement.

The prisoner had a good face, and looked worthy of the position of trust from which he had fallen.

The employers who were present to pros cute said that their clerk had served them well. He was without vices, and his dishonesty had surprised and grieved them. The young man merely replied that his salary was $2,500 a year, and he could not support himself and wife on it.

Then the old judge leaned forward, and in a fatherly way asked why two young persons could not live on such an income. No answer from the prisoner.

In the room was the father of the de faulter. He said that his income for thirty years had been $1,200. On that sum he had lived comfortably, with seven children, and had saved a little money.

At this point the prisoner's wife, by permission, made a statement. She said that she had lived extravagantly. Although used to an economical life, she had after her marriage spent money freely on luxurious furniture, entertainments, dress and servants in order to get a footing in a circle with people of fortune. She felt satisfied that her extravagant demands had led her husband, without her knowledge, to embezzle the funds of the firm.

Then there was a solemn pause. After a few moments the judge asked the employers if they were satisfied with the explanation. They readily answered in the affirmative, and said that they would withdraw their warrant, and retain the clerk in his old position, as they believed that his lesson would last him for life.

A word or two of advice from the judge, and the case was dismissed. Speaking of this unfortunate couple, the Philadelphia Inquirer says that they should profit by the words of Micawber: "Annual come, twenty pound; annual expenditure, nineteen, six; result—happiness; annual income, twenty pound; annual expenditure, twenty pound, six; result-misery."

No Essayist Need Apply.

writer who appears to be pretty well in formed on literary topics, thinks there is an open field for the essayist in America. He says we have plenty of poets and novelists, but no noted essayist since Emerson laid down his pen and joined the silent ones.

This is all true enough; we have none who can thunder like Emerson, though Oliver Wendell Homes is now giving us some delightful essays in conversational style, and James Russell Lowell can be heard from if need be. But this is not the age of the essayist: Sir Roger de Coverley and De Quincey are little read, and unless one could tip his sentences with the fine humor of Lamb, they would fall flat, and be most unprofitable Indeed, it is doubtful if even Lamb could make a living by his essays now, unless, perhaps, he could bring himself to take lessons of Bill Nye and turn the whole thing into a brawling farce. The essayist vainly knocks at the literary doors of today; the lecturer who has not made the circuit of the world, for a wager, in i xty days, is greeted by slim audiences and hardly makes enough to pay hall rent. Your sensational author is the fellow who gets there, and the brief, direct story-teller finds the public clamoring at his door and calling for "more" continually-

No essayist need apply; the public will not hear him, however wisely he may preach and moralize. His day has been, and will be: but it is not now.

Not an Idle Boast.

In Raleigh, a few days ago, at a business meeting, a speaker said: "It is in our power -it is possible-to make Weldon or Fayetteville a Lowell, create a Pittsburg at Greensboro, an Evansville at Raleigh, a Grand Rapids at Newbern, a Rutland at Charlotte. Not only is it possible, it is inevitable." This is big talk, and yet it has a sound ba-rumpus. He did not bother the courts, nor send a file of soldiers to arrest the libeler. He invited the journalist into his garden, told him to defend himself and then gave him a sound thrashing, and let him go. Perhaps it was very undignified conduct for a president, but it is said that every man and woman in Mexico thought all the better of Diaz when the story got out. Not much red-tape about such a ruler.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Complaint.

ATLANTA; Ga., May 2.-Editor CONSTITUTION : I beg, in the interests of justice and inoffensive citizens, to call the attention of the honorable police commission to the frequency of arrests up-on charges which turn out to be groundless and unwarranted. Three white men, Thomas Malone John Clarke and Bud Martin, and John Jones colored, are arrested by one Ethridge, of the police force, and dragged to the station-house and in carcerated in the city's dungeons; and after being subjected to such indignity for a considerable time are tried before the honorable recorder on the charge of "disorderly conduct and loitering upon the property of another," and by him summarily and promptly discharged, because the evidence failed to show that either of the four parties named were to the slightest extent guilty of any offense; and in the case of John Jones, the proof being that he had been arrested for "Jack Burts," and in that of the three white men, that they had the permission of the party in charge of the premises in question to go and to be upon such premises, and no evidence whatever of any disorderly conduct on their part, and the prosecutor and alleged owner of the premises wholly failing to appear and testify without satisfactory reasons therefor being assigned by said police officer, and without even his name being given to the court or counsel. Four such assa, fall in one day, made by the same officer against four unoffending and, so far as it appears, peaceable sons of toil, it seems to me calls for an investigation. Wesley and the Lottery Ticket.

MESSRS. EDITORS: THE CONSTITUTION is my avorite paper, and its reputation is dear to me on I could not suffer an act of injustice to Mr. Wesley to pass unchallenged. I did not propose to discuss the moral issues involved in the drawing of lotteries, but I believed it to be necessary to place before your readers a true account of Mr. Wesley's views on the "casting

You were kind enough to admit my article, and would have no more to say upon the subject, if a correspondent signing himself "Reader" had not appeared in your columns with the most extra-ordinary statement that I have ever seen in print. Multitudes of accusations have been made against John Wesley, but this statement of "Reader" is

I am not in a position now to verify the state I am not in a position now to verify the statement, but if I may trust my recollection of former reading this is true. There is in Wesley's journal an entry to the effect that he had purchased a lottery ticket for £5, with prayer to God that it might draw the prize, as he needed the money for the furtherance of some Christian or charitable Christian or charitab might draw the prize, as he needed the money for the furtherance of some Christian or charitable enterprise then on his hands."

I assure "Reader" that his memory is a very treacherous one, if this is a specimen of its integrity. I believe that I have read within the last five years every line in the prose works of John Wesley, as I have had in contemplation a chronological edition of his writings. I am positively certain that no such record as that alluded to by "Reader" appears in any part of the works of John Wesley. But to be able to make my denial as positive as words can make it, I have taken the four volumes of Wesley's Journal, comprising more than 2,000 octavo pages, and after scanning every line in the four volumes, I assure "Reader" that he has picked up a waif somewhere on the sea of literature that may have been attributed to Mr. Wesley, but certainly by some one who intended more evil than I believe exists in the heart of "Reader."

I know that it is difficult to prove a negative, of "Reader."

I know that it is difficult to prove a negative, therefore the injustice of making a random assertion, without offering the slightest clue by which the truth may be ascertained. But in this instance your correspondent's memory must bear the blame, and nay "usual accuracy" will stand unimpeached until the direct reference to book, chapter and page shall be produced to sustain "Readers" statement. If that statement could be proved, I should draw a different conclusion, because I occupy a standpoint directly "Reader's" statement on that statement could be proved, I should draw a different conclusion, because I occupy a standpoint directly opposite to that of "Reader." If there has been an "evolution of ethics" upon this subject I do not know if. I know that lotteries were drawn in Rome as part of the Roman Saturnalia, and heathen moralists condemned them before there was any Christian teacher in position of authority in Rome. I know that Queen Elizabeth authorized the first lottery drawn in England, and Queen Anne, one hundred and forty years afterwards, suppressed lotteries as "public nuisances" in England. John Wesley was a child when lotteries were thus branded by an act of parliament as, severe as any ever passed in Georgia. Between 1569 and 1712 a great change came over the mind of the state. But the great English statesman who could not prevent the "South Sea Bubble" was powerless before the advocates of lotteries. The state legalized them again. Thus, under Elizabeth, James and Charles I. lotteries prevailed, but Cromwelland the commonwealth suppressed them. Charles II. restored and Queen Anne abolished them. George I. brought them back and George IV.—strangest part of all—finally banished them from Great Britain.

Lotteries are drawn in almost every country in Events.

IV.—strangest part of all—finally banished them from Great Britain.

Lotteries are drawn in almost every country in Europe, The director of the French exposition of 1889 suggests to the Chicago people that a lottery is just the thing to put the World's fair upon a sound financial basis. The Panama canal is to be resuscitated by means of a lot ery. In all this I see no signs of an "evolution of ethics," whatever that phrase may mean. To me it looks like an involution, working out and in, back and forth, according to the opportunities of a healthy or unhealthy moral sense in the governments of the world.

But this I know, and the proofs are at hand. Teachers of morality in the days of Elizabeth condemned the lottery system on the same ground that they de today. There has been no chauge in the ethics of the church, and there can be none. If it is-wrong today, it was wrong 300 years ago. Bishop Jewell, Jeremy Collier, Samuel Wesley, Jr. Samuel Johnson and the "Spectator" are precisely of one mind upon this subject. How far the Spectator, No. 191, 1711, helped to suppress lotteries I do not know. Mingled wit and ridicule never attacked them with more power and sagacity. But Dr. Johnson, in "The Rambler," No. 181, in December, 1751, failed to make an impression upon the public unind.

It would be a poor compliment to John Wesley to say that he had a lower standard of "cthics" than Samuel Johnson. But, when it appears that his grandfather and his father were members of the "Society for the Reformation of Manners." in which every form of gaming and of gaming devices was pursued by the just forces of the law and moral suasion, it is due to John Wesley to gate that the action attributed to him

Worcester, Mass.

Mr. Wood was, seen last night. He is a man of fine education, very genteel manners, frank and outspoken, and bears every appearance of being a thoroughgoing business man.

"I am a Marylander by birth," he said, "and at six months of age I was carried to Baltimore by my parents. That was this month forty years ago, and I will be forty-one in September. Most of my life has been spent in Baltimore, although I went down on the Patuxas river and ran a ship chandler's business some years."

ness some years."
"Then you are well acquainted there?"
"Well," with a smile, "I ought to be. Of course Baltimore is a large city, but I spent two years there, after a trip to Europe for my health, in 1870-71 and again in 1871-72. I can leavify myself. identify myself very readily; in fact, Mr. O'-Bryan, window-dresser at J. M. High & Co.'s, has already identified me by my right name. Dr. Brockett, the dentist, who lives at Balti-more place, knows me. He attended dental lectures there under our family dentist, where I made his acquaintance."

lectures there under our family dentist, where I made his acquaintance."
"Have you been here long?"
"Three weeks ago I came here from Baltimore, intending to meet a man from the St. Charles hotel, who wished to rent a hotel in Brunswick, whither I was going with him in the business. I wrote him that the only chance was to build one there, and he replied that it would be impossible for him to reach here before the middle of April. He has not shown up yet."

up yet."
"How about the pictures?" "Well, the picture with the beard on is as good a picture of myself as if I had set for it. I shaved my beard last Friday, and the other you can see for yourself, is not at all like me. Here is one taken when I was twenty-two years old, wearing only a mustache. Compare them."

years old, wearing only a mustacher Conpare them."

The pictures were compared, that one and the one of Kimball taken at twenty-six, and they did not resemble each other much.

"Of course men wearing a short parted brown or black beard of that style all look more or less alike. The officers consider the resemblance sufficient to detain me, but I am not the man they want in Boston."

An officer will arrive tonight or tomorrow from Boston to investigate the matter.

Mr. Ward takes his detention easily, like one who feels that he will readily be able to establish his innocence at the proper time.

A QUEER COUPLE.

Last night a telephone message was received from Sheriff Austin, of Decatur, stating that he had apprehended a man and a woman there who seemed to be very anxious to leave on the 11 o'clock train for Augusta. He suspected that there was something crooked about the pair, and his suspicions pointed to complicity in the big Boston embezzlement case, for which Mr. Wood was arrested.

Captain Wright and Detective Cason went down to Decatur to investigate the matter. They said that they lived on Poplar street in this city, and that they took a ride on the electric car, when they decided to go to Augusta, as they intended going there soon. They claimed to be man and wife.

Captain Wright took the man aside and

"What is your name?"
"Wood," he replied.
At the same time [Cason took the woman side and put the same question.
"What is your name?"
"Howell."

"Howell."

She grew very nervous and claimed to be very badly frightened. They gave no further explanation, and the officer turned them loose, as they did not answer the description of the parties they were in search of.

But they separated the pair, and told the man to go one way and the woman another. They obeyed very promptly, and so the sensation was ended.

But there is some mystery about them from thair actions, and the fact that they were traveling together as man and wife.

The trouble was they had not time to finish their plans and adopt a name in common.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CELEBRATION. The Fifteenth Annual Meeting of Newton

County Association.

Oxford, Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—The fitteenth annual celebration of the Newton County Sunday-school association convened here Friday at 10 o'clock, the exercises lasting till 4 p. m. From early morning the town was filling with country folks from miles around till the time for beginning the exercises had arrived, when the whole east side of the Emory college campus, where the services were held, was crowded with people, buggies, wagons and animals of all kinds and descriptions. This first Friday in May is always a holiday to the students of the college, who add greatly to the crowd and do their best at entertaining their country friends. When President R. C. Cook called the association to order there were fully two thousand happy faces before him. The opening song was sung by all the schools in unison, after which Chapiain W. H. LaPrade led devotional exercises. Dr. W. A. Candler made the address of welcome in his own inimitable style, and was responded to by Dr. W. H. LaPrade, for the visitors, in an exceedingly graceful and entertaining talk. Reports were then made from all the schools in short three-minute talks, the reports in all cases being cheering—in many cases especially so. After songs and one or two minor matters were attended to, the annual address before the association was delivered by Dr. Henry McDonald, of Atlanta. The prize singing from all the schools followed dinner. Oxford and Covington are ruled out of the contest, but some of the country schools, it seemed to your correspondent, beat them "all holler" in their evident delight.

ruled out of the contest, but some of the country schools, it seemed to your correspondent, beat them "all holler" in their evident delight in singing. The first prize was awarded to Shiloh Sunday-school, the second to the one at Gaithers. The children also sang for prizes, the first prize being awarded to Oxford, the second to Midway. Twenty-five Sunday-schools are represented in the association, and this annual meeting does great good.

A GAME OF BALL. After the exercises concluded many of the visitors adjourned to the ball ground, where Oxford and Covington played a match game. Neither side had their full team, but an interesting game was played. Oxford (the in vincibles) winning by a score of 11 to 5, a

ABOUT THAT ELEPHANT.

And he isn't joking about it either.

"You see," he says, "we need an elephant here. Be it red, white or lead colored, we need it. It will tickel the children and the ladies will delight to gaze upon him.

"The scheme is to make him a stock company. Let everybody in Atlanta have a share in the elephant—twenty-five cents worth. It will be only a little bit of elephant on anyone's hands.

It will be only a little oft of elephant.

"All the children will want to chip in a quarter to buy him. Let 'em do it—without regard to age, size, color or previous condition of pocketbook.

"We can get a good elephant for three or four thousand dollars—a regular daisy, with two tails, as the little ones say.

"Yes, we must have that elephant. We've got to do something to offset Bob Lowry's tallyho.

"The elephant goes. Let everybody get their two bits ready.

"The elephant goes. Let everybody get their two bits ready.

"Just imagine owning an elephant—we can whitewash him if we want to—owning twenty-five cents worth of him.

"Go out to Grant's park and look at him—fed him on tobacco if you want to. Then say to yourself he's as much mine as anybody else's. It's worth the higgest twenty-five cents in Atlanta.

"Of course we will have that elephant. It's a wonder somebody hasn't thought about it before now."

An expression of amazement came upon the good-natured countenance of Mr. Don Bain when he was approached on the elephant scheme.

"Elephants!"

"Yes, elephant."

"Elephant! What's the matter with you all over there at The Constitution office. Elephants! Are you all crazy, or is it because Clark Howell's away?"

It was explained that the elephant fund was a straight scheme.

"I am strictly pon-committal." continued

a straight scheme.
"I am strictly non-committal," continued
Mr. Bain. "I am not versed in elephantology, was never in the elephant business, couldn't say whether they eat nails or sawdust, and if I had one wouldn't know whether to sell it to the weiner-wurst man or give it to the children to whether with " dren to play with."
"But seriously?"

"Seriously-elephant! I'm on the fence."

The elephant question knocked the breath out of Colonel George W. Adair at first.
"A white 'un," he finally remarked, with a smile that went from ear to ear.

"I don't know how many durn fools are left yet, but a good many of 'em have bought elephants already.
"I'm for the elephant, though. A quarter's worth? Yes, and as much for the children." Solicitor Charlie Hill will start for Europe n a few days. Everybody has heard about it. If the elephantists just sayso, he will extend is trip to Asia in quest of a brand new article in the elephant line.

"Here's my quarter," he said pulling out a coin that shown as brightly as the slick new

"And if you'll just let me know in time or send me word I'll bring him back on the City of New York with me. They tell me you can catch 'em over yonder by putting salt on their tell'."

Walter Venable would rather give a quarter to buy the elephant than go along with Charlie Hill to Europe.

"Elephant! Of course. Where is he? A quarter? Two of 'em if you say so. Trot your elephant out till I see his gait."

Dr. Amos Fox: "I am in favor of that elephant. It won't help the confederate monument fund any, but I'm for it just the same. Pay a quarter? Of course."

Mr. H. L. Atwater: "If we had it we would certainly have an elephant on our hands. But I'd risk it a quarter's worth anyhow."

Mr. Lawrence Harrison: "Atlanta has too many elephants on her hands already, but I guess she could weather another if it was out in Grant Park."

Judge Calhoun: "Yes, I am in favor of Judge Calhoun: "Yes, I am in favor of buying an elephant er anything else that would be good for the city. We need more amusements than we have, and there are plenty of people who would come miles to see an elephant if they had never seen one before. There is more in this than you might imagine. I hope the elephant will be bought."

"I am certainly in favor of the elephant," said Dr. Sid Holland; "every zoo has one, and I don't see why Atlanta should not. Every-body could contribute twenty-five cents, and those who could not afford that much could give apples to feed it on. We want a fine elephant with a tail at each end, and we want a tame one that won't feed on the children when apples are scarce. The city ought to have one, and I am in favor of buying it at once."

A distinguished party of visitors passed the day in the city yesterday.

The party is composed of James West chairman; C. A. Williams, secretary and treasurer; Captain J. R. Shields, Thomas B. Kelley, D. P. Harris, E. L. Ralls, Dr. J. F. Mains, A. B. Pope, Colonel A. L. Richardson, C. D. Hendley, W. H. Bogle, T. A. Frierson, J. C. Wall, Ben J. Allen, J. H. Lewis, Mat Mahorner, J. J. Conway, Hon. M. W. Howard, Hon. W. W. Harslson, S. H. Lea, C. E.; Dr. J. A. Sexton, B. H. Nicholson, Mrs. Annie Mabel Williams, Mrs. Marie R. Wright, correspondent New York World; W. T. Burkham, correspondent Cincinnati Enquirer, and G. B. Denison.

The syndicate has obtained control of about 1,600 acres of land at and about the town of Suwanee—some of it regarded as the most valuable gold land in Georgia and as rich as is to be found anywhere. The syndicate is a very strong one and proposes to develop the property as rapidly as possible. The excursion is composed principally of the shareholders, and while at Suwanee this week a permanent organization will be had. There are some invited guests, and Professor G. W. West goes as a mineral expert and Mr. W. M. Lindsay as stenographer. Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Burkham have been specially detailed by their papers to write up the property after an actual examination.

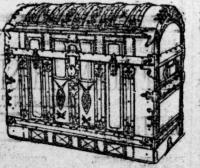

Mrs. Wright is well known in Atlanta and her many friends will be delighted to know that she is near them again.

DOES NOT WANT TO BE REFERRED TO AS THE BROTHER OF HIS BROTHER.

But Is Entitled to Consideration on His Own Account-How He Performs the Duties

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 3,-[Special.]-Foremost among the notable men in this city and state is the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher. When you inquire if he is related to the renowned Henry Ward Beecher, the Elmirians do not reply: "He is a brother of Henry Ward's," but in admiration of their pastor they give Henry Ward the honor of being "a brother of Mr. sons of prominent men really suffer from a sort of sense of reflected honor, each one knowing that if he does anything of credit he is pointed out as being the son or brother of so and so, when it is by his own giant will and intellect, brainy ideas and brilliant plans. and personal magnetism that he has accomplished something and won the confidence and admiration of his associates.

Mr. Beecher lives on the same hillside where Mark Twain spends his summers. His house is not attractive, save the look of substantial comfort about it. His wife is a grandchild of Noah Webster's, and a very wonderful woman she is. It is said that Mr. Beecher, when in poor health, is sometimes a sufferer with melancholia, and his busy little wife finds her greatest pleasure is being a very hyndle of superior in his in being a very bundle of sunshine in his She is also a valuable helpmeet in his Sunday-school work, classifying the children, and assists the superintendent in an unostentatious way, in the details of all the nanagement of their entertainments, charities and other work.

They have no children, but have adopted two girls, who find their home a shelter of love. Her grandfather would cherish with pride such a granddaughter. She has many interesting old family relics—among them a few leaves of the original manuscript of Web-ster's dictionary. In her parlor is a marble bust of the man who gave us this ever useful companien, which should have a place on every desk. Mrs. Beecher is noted for her work of charity, and has a brain as full of sensible, practical thoughts as her grandfather's was of words. Her manner is unassuming and entirely without unpleasant affectation. An admirer said of her: "She is my thirteenth chapter of first Corinthians, bound in

Mr Beecher has none of that air of hauteur which belonged to his brother; the expression of sincere earnestness and deep benevolence written all over his face, in which you find, in

of sincere earnestness and deep benevolence written all over his face, in which you find, in studying it, a softened tenderness with the intellect and strength, invites the most humble sinner to ask him for help and to seek him for sympathy. He has anything but the clerical look as he rides on his tricycle to church, wearing a fur cap in colder weather and at other times a soft felt.

His church is large and handsome, being built of stone and brick. At all hours the stranger receives a real southern welcome to enter its doors. It has many unique and pleasing departments. The auditory is surrounded by a wide gallery. The pulpit-stand is beautiful every Sabbath with the rare flowers which Mrs. Langdon ("Mark Twain's" mother-in-law) never fails to arrange there. Last Sunday it was a bower of beauty with exquisite cream-white hot-house roses and delicate green ferns and, to relieve the suggestion of sad occasions, she arranged here and there branches of rare crimson blossoms. The auditorium is circular in shape and open above to the ceiling of the dome-shaped spire.

In rear of the audience room is the lecture and largest Sunday-school room. Beyond this are two spacious parlors and a library with well-filled shelves of books on all subjects of interest and information. These rooms can be thrown together for church entertainments. Near by are cloak-rooms and bath-rooms, and Near by are cloak-rooms and bath-rooms, and a kitchen with perfect arrangements for cooking cubrel suppers. In one-corner of the pantry, when the dishes are washed, I noticed a cabinet filled with complete table service. On the second floor are several Sunday-school rooms, which vary in size; in two of them tiny chairs told of dear little hearts who were learning sweet gospel truths, and we seemed to hear a voice saying: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not." On the walls of these rooms hang such suggestive pictures as Jesus blessing little children, and instructive maps. In the large rooms the chairs were placed in semi-circles for classes, with a chair facing for each teacher. These were arranged at sufficient distances, so that the questions and answers will not distract the attention of classes. The entire house is a big home and some of the teachers take their classes to the library and parlors.

The Sunday-school has a membership of over eight hundred. Mr. Beecher prepares the lesson questions and sends them to each member of his flock with Scripture readings for each day. The great interest taken by parents in this grand work, which is too often not the case in most Sunday-schools, stimulates the efforts of the children and brings all to a better understanding of the word.

Mr. Beecher preaches a sermon to the children the first Sunday of every month and with them he reviews the lessons for the month, using maps. He has for them a seven years' course of Bible studies, and whenever they go through these and receive from their theachers marks of "perfect" in all of the lessons, they receive a diploma as graduates of the Sunday-school. Of course, they are encouraged to continue the Bible studies, as new thoughts and views are gleaned with every reading. Before taking up this course of study, each member is required to study, for six months, the Liturgy-lessons, the creed, sermon on the mount, how to be a disciple, the prodigal son, separating of the sheep from the goats, the new Jerusalem and the commandments, thus being prepared to study with better understanding.

On the second floor of the building, where the Sunday-school rooms are, is an amusement hall, and in it is a stage for private theatricals and here they oftenlindulge say that he is greatly beloved by his young people.

On the same floor is a bed-chamber with dressing-room and bath-room for Mr. and Mrs. Beecher, where they frequently spend the night, after being up late at a church entertainment. On this hall lives the housemother, a sweet-faced old soul, and next to her bed-room is a sitting-room, where she sits and mends and darns after she has put the rooms in order, and here she receives visitors who come with tales of woe or to ask for aid from the church. A certain sum of money is given her each week by the church to meet these calls, and from the manner in which she reports to proper committees, her work is conscientiously done. There is also a small kitchen on this floor, where this faithful mother prepares her meals, and doubtless shares them often with many a hungry little mouth.

It is said that Mr. Beecher, like his brother, is very fond of flowers. I know he loves music, for when the choir sung hymns of praise with softened voices full of soul-stirring pathos, moistened eyes looked up and saw tears on the cheek of this servant of God, as he sat with bowed head. His text was, "We, then, as workers together with Him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain." Broad-minded "culture" in the best and highest sense of the word was the sum and substance of his sermon.

Competent critics say that he has more beauty of feeling and depth of thought than he brother.

He is a Congregationalist and his church is called Park church—so named because of the beautiful little park adjoining it. As I heard this man preaching patience and love and Christ in all things, he reminded me of dear Dr. McDonald at home, and I could not believe that he, like his sister of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" fame, had such bitter feelings toward the south—he must be conservative and have broader views. Afterward an intimate friend of his told me that he always had sympathy for the south, and that he thought the negro would never be as happy as when he was under the care of his "old master," and that his friends often langhed at the idea of an antislavery church having a pro-slavery preacher. der the care of his "old master," and that his friends often laughed at the idea of an anti-slavery church having a pro-slavery preacher. Why does not the same idea apply to other where confidence becomes a WHY DORS'NOT THE SAME IDEA apply to other lines of business where confidence becomes a factor in your dealings, for instance, in the purchase of a WATCH OF A DIAMOND? It cannot be denied that considering quality and price one yard of cloth may be dear at four cents, another cheap at ten cents, one watch dear at ten dollars, another cheap at twenty. Now, to determine the question of cheapness, we must consider: 1st. The standing of the establishment which sells the watch.

2d. The value of the guarantee to the purchaser of the watch.

3d. The acknowledged merits of the watch offered.

3d. The acknowledged of the strong and responsible guarantee, will be found the cheapest in the end.

THE CONLEY CASE.

MR. MIKE MAHER HAS A WORD TO SAY ABOUT IT.

He Refers to Some of the Details of the Case—Conley's Indebtedness, and How It Came About—About the Petition.

Mr. Mike Maher has something to say about the governor, after having passed the channels of the court and having been pushed to the executive office with a vigor which reflects great credit on the ability of Solicitor O'Bryan. the Conley case, which is now in the hands of Mr. Maher don't want the governor to interfere with the verdicts of the courts, and he gives his reasons, saying: The sureties, A. E. Beck and myself, paid six thousand dollars for Conley, and we have never been paid back one cent. Conley has, I understand, 1,100 acres of land near Atlanta, worth not less than $100,000, and he has never offered to pay us back one cent."

"Who paid Thornton the money?"
"I paid $3,000 and Buck $3,000. I sold my home to pay the debt. Conley is much wealthier than I am, and though I appealed to him when my property was advertised for sale, he never offered to assist me at all."

"Why did you go his bond?"
"Simply as an act of friendship. I never received any consideration for so doing." "Did you ever try to collect the money on the civil side of the court without instituting the civil side of the court without instituting criminal proceedings?"

"I did. I filed bills, and levied on his printing outfit near East Point, but Conley induced his brother to claim them, and so I was at my row's end. You can't reach such a man by a civil proceeding. I had this mortgage, and so I consulted my lawyers as to the advisability of prosecuting him criminally to get back my money. I don't think $6,000, is an excessive fine, because Buck and I have paid out over that amount for Conley. Conley is only paying what others have paid out for him. If Judge Van Epps had held that Buck was a party to the mortgage as well as myself, the fine would have been twelve thousand dollars.

"Has Mr. Conley ever offered to pay you?"

"No. After one jury had convicted him and the supreme court reversed it on a technicality Conley had abundant opportunity to pay me before I preferred another accusation, but he never offered to do anything, and I was forced to allow the law to take its course. He practically acknowledged his guilt, and fought the case out on technicalities. Indeed on the last trial he would not plead 'not spilty' but stood mute." 'not guilty,' but stood mute."
"What about the value of the Post-Appeal

"What about the value of the Post-Appeal property?"

"Well, I have this to say: The securities have paid out $6,000 for Mr. Conley, and he ought to pay it back whether the property is worth much or little. But the fact is the property was worth from $6,000 to $10,000. As to Mr. Dodson's estimate of its value, I have this to say: Mr. Dodson was a witness before two juries who tried its value, and Mr. Dodson, there, testified to its value. But one jury found it worth $7,000, and another $6,000, thus overriding Mr. Dodson's opinion."

"How about the petition for his relief?"

"Well, anybody will sign a petition. Those who don't understand the facts of the case are willing, by the promptings of charity, to release a criminal. I can get most any sort of a petition signed by anybody. I have been congratulated on having justice done me in this matter by my friends all over the state of Georgia, and I do not doubt that the governor will endorse the verdict of the courts."

The Tolleson Case Comes Up Before Judge Clarke Saturday.

At chambers Saturday the Tolleson case was set for hearing before Judge Marshall J.

Three weeks ago the supreme court ren-dered its decision sustaining the ruling of the superior court in the main in the case against Mr. Tolleson for contempt, but ordering Judge Clarke to amend his order so as to describe the assets, the failure to produce which had caused Mr. Tolleson imprisonment for contempt of

For various causes, the compliance with the supreme court's recommendation, and a hearing from Tolleson's attorneys has been contin-ued from the Saturday succeeding the supreme court's ruling until yesterday.

When the defendant's lawyers appeared before Judge Clarke yesterday, it was only to meet with a further continuance of the case until next Saturday.

Judge Clarko announced that he could not proceed with the case until he was furnished with an official copy of the supreme court's decision. This had not yet been done, and therefore he would be compelled to await until yet been taken.

therefore he would be compelled to await until such action had been taken.

Under a recent law, it is required that in all cases similar to the Tolleson case, this feature of it when the lower court is not fully sustained, the supreme court shall officially no tify the lower court by transmitting a copy of tify the lower court by transmitting a copy of its ruling.

The clerk of the supreme court has so far failed to do this, and until a copy of the decision of the supreme court is filed with Judge Tanner, clerk of the superior court, Judge Clarke will not proceed with the case.

Since the matter has been brought up, it is more than probable that the necessary papers will be on file by next Saturday, the time set for a hearing.

Tolleson's attorneys are confident that when Judge Clarke amends his order, as directed by the supreme court, describing the assets be-the supreme court, describing the assets be-lieved to be in his possession, their client's release from jail will be secured.

Mr. Tolleson is also sanguine, and the delay in getting the supreme court's order executed chafes him considerably.

The Minstrels Tonight.
This evening, for only one performance, George Wilson and his great corkists will give us a scance of music and fun.

of music and fun.

George has about the same company as when last here. A few good people have been added and the programme somewhat changed, but the programme is still one of genuine minstrelsy, which the aggregation started out to present this season, and which, by so doing, has made the season a big winner. There is a vast differene nowadays between minstrelsy and genuine minstrelsy. The first, in some instances, is merely, a combi-The first, in some instances, is merely a combi-nation of acrobats, contortionists, Bedouin Arab tumbler, Aztec children, wire walkers and Jap-anese. The latter must be of a somewhat different nature, and often has the question been asked: What is genuine minstrelsy? Some people think it should comprise only the simple and common-place melodies and antics of the old plantation toon.

George Wilson believes that negro minstrelsy should be to the African race what the drama is to the Caucasian—the reflex of what is best and brightest in the lives of people. The African, or negro of today, is a very different creature from the African, or negro, of twenty five years ago. He has advanced with the liberty and light of the century.

the Airican, or negly, which the liberty and light of the century.

He has advanced with the liberty and light of the century.

He has acquired the cultivated tastes of his paler brethren, and has ceased, so far as possible, to be the "Pompey" of old.

Mr. Wilson takes the humorous side of nature for his foot-light mirror, and therein reflects the vagaries and amusing peculiarities of a self-possessed, plucky and ambitious race.

The amusing mistakes which are common to humanity, and the special features of the negro today, he good-naturedly stravesties and politely satirizes, and his singular genius for melody, mirth and harmony are illustrated by the George Wilson minstrels for the benefit of the people. This is legitimate minstrelsy. This is what wins. The show-going people want and will patronize genuine minstrelsy, refined and delightful. They get it from Wilson.

THE AFFINITIES

A Novel Issued From The Constitution Pres THE CONSTITUTION job office has recently turned out a good piece of work in a book called "The Affinities," a story by Miss Alice called "The Affinities," a story by Miss Alice Vivian Brownlee, of Alabama.

The typography and binding of the book are excellent, and the book goes out with the indorsement of Major E. S. Starr, the mayor of Selma. We are informed that almost the entire first edition of the book has been subscribed for in advance at a price which will give the author a handsome compensation.

As to the matter Miss Brownlee writes with the freshness that might be expected in a young lady of twenty. She has directed her efforts to a field which has been little worked, and which if worked well promises good results. The Indian wars of the carly part of this century developed many of the strong phases of Indian and frontier character.

Both the Indian and the white man upon occasion rese to heroism, or descended to the most barbarous cruelty. A similar field in the north was developed by James Fennimore Cooper, whose Indian tales are yet almost our only border romances. Nothing of the sort, which came from the southern country, is now remembered save "The Young Marconers." a book which is gratefully remembered by the boys and girls of two generations. Colonel Charles C. Jones has considered the southern Indians historically, but so far as we know there has been little attempt to weave their lives into romance.

A word of candor is not untimely.
In working a field comparatively new or unknown, the rewards offered are great, but one must be a master to attain success. The story must be harmonious, and the scenes and incidents must have the stamp of reality.

This is where so many writers of fiction fail. They do not realize the necessity for absolute faithfulness as to time and surroundings in the portraiture of their characters and scenes.

Miss Brownlee is right in supposing that action, adventure, movement, or whatever the momentum of life and passion may be called, its indispensable to a good story. Without some such movement there is in fact no story at all. But the adventures must, like the scenes and characters, carry the stamp of reality upon them. Not that we would favor realism uninspired

Not that we would favor realism uninspired by the imagination, but the imagination must make a springboard of fact.

It must start from a basis of reality, else it will go wandering comet-like forever and a day without coming to its destination. Let the young novelist study the patient, laborious methods of Scott, the greatest romancer of them all.

SOCIETY NEWS.

Tuesday the Featherstonian Debating society, of West End academy, picnicked at Lakewood, the beautiful estate of Dr. Mozley. All present spent a highly enjoyable day, the only draw-back being the absence of some of the most prominent members of the society. The members present were Misses Pearl Mozley, Bessie Mobley, Rosa Spights, Mary Connally, Kate Latham, Lillian Culberson, Mamie Barnes, Charley Dunn, Ruby Mozley, Emma Laura Howell and Lucile Danial. Messrs. Julian Harris, John Mathews, George Cunningham, A. O. Stewart, Miles Cunningham, Lewis Rogers, Byron Humphries, Thomas Latham Thomas Longino, Joseph Connally, O. L. Reid.

The party was chaperoned by Mrs. Mozley and Miss Carrie Mathews.

Mr. Milles Cunningham addressed the party in the stead of President Samuel H. Howell who was prevented from being present by sickness. After lunch, on invitation from Mrs. Mozley, the party withdrew from the grove to the parlors of Lakewood, where several of the party entertained the others by recitations and music.

One of the most crowning events of the week was that of a grand hop on last Friday evening, given by Mrs. M. L. McCrosky, on the sixtieth birthday of her husband, M. D. L. McCrosky, in honor of their visiting guests, Misses Susie and Claudie Gibbs, of Charleston, S. C., and their daughter, Miss Julia, of the city. At an early hour the doors were thrown open to the belles and beaux of the city and surrounding vicinity. Three spacious rooms was set apart for the occasion, beautifully decorated with Chinese lanterns and floral buds too numerous to mention. - At a late floral buds too numerous to mention. At a late hour the music ceased, the crowd dispersed, wishing Octason palace and its kind hostess many pleasant returns of the evening.

REYNOLDS, Ga., May 4.—(Special;)—Major Pelham, Messrs. T. B. Griffith and J. A. Adams, Dr. and Mrs. G. T. Gostin, and Misses Ida Goddard and Eunice Griffeth, returned from Thomasville today, whither they had gone as delegates to the State Sunday-school association. Miss Nellie Wilson, of Orlando, Fla., is visiting Mrs. P. Pelham.

Trinity Church The services at this central church were largely attended on yesterday. At the morning service Dr. Heidt, the pastor, selected his text from Galatians, 2nd chapter—"I am crucified with Christ, yet nevertheless I live." He remarked that "all life," whether in the kingdom of nature or the higher kingdom of grace, is conditional on death." This main proposition he illustrated in a variety of ways, and at times with a singular felecity of expression. The services at this central church were largely attended on yesterday. At the morning service of ways, and at times with a singular felecity of expression.

He afterwards proceeded to speak of the crucifixion of Christ, a mode of death which even Cicero characterized as cruel in the extreme. And yet Jesus bore the cross and suffered its unspeakable agonies for our salvation. If we would live with Him we must likewise suffer with him. In depicting the death of Christ the preacher's descriptive powers had full play, and riveted the attention of the audience.

He urged his hearers to be so crucified with Christ, so as to be dead to the law, dead to sin, dead to the world. These three points heistressed with much insistency, and especially the last, which involved a renunciation of the prevailing worldliness of the times.

Dr. Heidt intimated that as it was a communion Sabbath, he would refrain from any elaborate discussion, but closed with an eloquent appeal for higher and broader consecration to Christ and the church.

Augusta people could not have been excelled. Neither could any railroad in America have arranged better transportation accommodations than has been done by the Richmond and Danville. Colonel Taylor, the general passenger agent and prince of good fellows who accompanies the party, has won the hearts of both the people of Augusta's and the newspaper men. and as I write this, I hear the boys crying, "What's the matter with Taylor?—a jolly fellow he is."

Here are some characteristic expressions of the correspondents just gathered from their own lips:

W. J. LAMPTON, Washington Evening Star, author of the Judge's Waxem letters:

W. J. Lampton, Washington Evening Star, author of the Judge's Waxem letters:
Resplendent on her throne of green
Augusta sits the fairest queen.
In all the southland, far and wide,
Her arms stretched out to meet the tide
Of future greatness which shall flow
Unceasing as her powers grow,
In all that makes a city great
And magnifies the Empire State.
How proud she wears her golden crown,
Her royal robes a cotton gown,
Her power the water whence she gains
The title under which she reigns Today a queen, tomorrow she,
An empress and a queen will be!
George H. Apperson, St. Louis GlobeDemocrat: If all the southland is as fair as the valley of the Savannah, and all her people as charming and hospitable as those of Augusta, and all her women in particular so fascinating in their loveliness as the many whom we met, then I wonder that more poets have not been inspired to sing still sweeter songs of Dixie.

Moses P. Handy, Philadelphia, North

been inspired to sing still sweeter songs of Dixie.

Moses P. Handy, Philadelphia, North American, etc.: Georgia, revisited by me after eight years, impresses me more than ever as the key-stone state of the south. The first of the late confederate states to accept the political situation, she has been first and foremost also in accommodating herself to changed industrial conditions. Augusta, like Atlanta, is not only the flower, but the fruit of a great renaissance. Sweet 'as is my admiration of Augusta's hospitality, I am even more lost in admiration of her wonderful growth and promises as a manufacturing city. More than any other section the south needs the maintenance of a protective tariff to give her a front seat in the republic.

J. S. VAN ANTWERP, Minneapolis Journal:

I will simply make a prediction. From what I have seen of Augusta and her citizens during the past two days, I believe that in 1800 Augusta will have a population exceeding 100,000. It is a city that is bound to expand from a business standpoint. My visit fouth has shown me that the citizens of Augusta are royal entertainers, that it is a beautiful city and that Georgia is a great state.

RICHARD V. OULAHAN, The United Press: The sixty deduded Washington correspondents, most of whom had ideas more or less exaggerated concerning the south, are journeying northward on this Saturday night with regret in their hearts at leaving Augusta, but resting in the belief that information concerning pouthern hospitality has not been exaggerated;

A. H. S. Davis, Minneapolis Tribune: I was particularly struck with the modesty, beauty and grace of Augusta's ladies, the mag-nificence of her entertainments, the hospitality of her citizens and the splendid outlook that of her citizens and the splendid outlook that seems opening to her manufacturing and mer-cantile enterprises, but above all to the signifi-cant meaning of the broadening feelings of friendship and good will that crops out every-where toward their fellow countrymen and the north, whom so many think they would ostra-cize if they could. FRED A. G. HANDY, Chicago Tribune: The FRED Å. G. HANDY, Chicago Tribune: The evidences of good business sense and energy intelligently applied to the development of natural advantages of Augusta have impressed me with the belief that the future possibilities of that city as a manufacturing place and as a winter home are very great. Her generous hospitality was tendered without reserve to every one of us, and the courtesy extended by Major Riley, commandant of the United States military post, was one of the most pleasant and t, was one of the most pleasant and unexpected incidents of our visit. J. S. Henry, Commercial Gazette, Pitts-rg, Pa.: Was impressed with the fertility soil, hospitality of the citizens, and above with the beauty of the women. Was also all with the beauty of the women. Was also impressed with the insignificance and lightness of the line between the north and the south. Thinks "Augustah' is certainly a bustah."

W. L. CROUNSE. New York World: Georgian and the south of the

L. CROUNSE, New York World: Georgia's hospitality is unbounded. I shall never forget the princely entertainment afforded our party. My admiration of Augusta's institutions is evenly divided between her great industries and her pretty girls. I met one little blonde who is a 'daisy.' The Georgia 'cracker'—or 'crackeress'—is away ahead of the blue-stocking of the north.

Property of the north.

P. V. Degraw, general southern manager the United Press: I was very much impressed with the apparent content and happiness of the colored people, and the consideration shown them by their former owners. I never experienced more genuine hospitality, and very much regretted when I had to say goodbye, Augusta certainly has a great future before her.

before her.

Perry S. Heath, Indianapolis Journal and Omaha Bee: More than ever I am impressed with the fact that sectional lines are imaginary lines, and that there will no longer be sectionalism when the people of the north and south commingle sufficiently to know one another. Georgia is solving the race problem by saying and doing nothing on the subject. The business men of Angusta are making a pattern for the entire country by laying the foundation for one of the greatest commercial cities of the interior south upon business, irrespective of society or politics.

RICHARD LEE FEARN, Brooklyn Eagle:
As a southerner, familiar with the land of the fairest women, brainiest men, grandest resources and most propitious future, I am proud to hear on all sides of me, as we hurry northward, the absolute unanimity of opinion emphatically expressed by those who last week were strangers below Mason and Dixon's line, that the south can take care of the great race problem without advice from demagogues, and I am confident that hereafter the great northern newspapers will advance that opinion.

More manufactories and less politics will, in my judgment, make Georgia the star state of the south. As forour Augusta hosts, I can say that I was with them for a short thirty-six hours, and let feeling that I had known the whole town ever since I was a boy.

F. H. H. H. H. Orrond, D. Detroit Free Press; Of Augusta, I can say that I think the heavy weight of the house has a solid constituency. Of Georgia, I may add that it did me good to visit the most unainmostly democratic state of the union. It is a privilege for a democrate of the union. It is a privilege for a democrate from the eternal minority of some of the state of the whole south I can appreciate as I never did before the enthusiasm of our section in 1861 for the preservation of the union. DELIGHTED WITH DIXIE

EXPRESSIONS FROM THE CORRESPONDENTS

WHO RECENTLY VISITED AUGUSTA

The Trip to Georgia Was a Revelation—
Great Predictions as to the Fature of the Southern States.

On Train, May 4.—[Special]—The Washington correspondents are homeward bound, singing praises of Augusta, of all Georgia and of the entire south. The trip has been delightful. Indeed there has not been a dull moment.

To many who visited the south for the first time this trip to Georgia has been a revelation. The cordial and hospitable reception and entertainment of the correspondents by the Augusta people could not have been exceided. Neither could any railroad in America have arranged better transportation accommendations than has been done by the Richmond and Danville. Colonel Taylor, the general passenger agent and prince of good fellows who accompanies the party, has wen the hearts of both the people of Angusta and the newspaper men. and as I write this, I hear the boys crying, "What's the matter with Taylor?—a jolly fellow he is."

Here are some characteristic expressions of these words: Augusta, the bright star of the south.

E. G. DUNNELL, New York Times: Augusta's resources must be boundless if it still retains any working capital of hospitality after the draft made upon it for the Washington correspondents. The correspondents are all richer—in good will for Augusta's future, in their conviction of the enterprise, the friendship, the public spirit and loyal aspiration of its people to take a leading place in the march of improvement, and to be entitled to a full share of the regard of all the people. We take nothing from you but your good wishes. The more you give us of them the richer you will be for the giving.

Congressman Amos J. Cumings, New York Sun: Georgia was the first state to discover therself after the war. Since then, what I have seen in Augusta and elsewhere, I should say that New England has discovered Georgia. How much money she has invested there I don't know But one thing is certain, while the cotton mills of New England are weak and sickly, and her weavers restless and dissatisfied, the mills of Augusta seem to be wonderfully prosperous, and in the general up-weak and sickly, and her weavers restless and dissatisfied, the mills of Augusta seem to be wonderfully prosperous, and in the general upheaval in labor on both continents you have not a whimper from her weavers. Both employers and employes seem to be satisfied. This is the true test of prosperity.

Thomas McSheeby, Toledo Commercial: This was myl first visit south. I must say that I am agreeably surprised at the wholesouled hospitality and genuine warm-heartedness of the southern people. I was simply amazed at the apparent happiness of the colored people here, who seem to recognize that their real friends after all are the white residents of the southern states.

dents of the southern states.

HOBART BROOKS, New Haven Register:
We of the north have heard much of southern hospitality, but had no idea of what the real We of the north have heard much of southern hospitality, but had no idea of what the real article was until today. I have seen more genuine goodness of heart in Augusta than ever before. I have been brought closer to the people of the south, and I understand them better. The trip has widened my horizon, and made me think better of all mankind. If the "yanks" of Connecticut, who crossed swords with you; could all see Augusta as we saw her, the Nutmeg state would forever be democratic, and her representatives would vote to take the snags out of the Savannah.

H. M. Thompson, Cleveland Plain Dealer: Augusta has nobly appeased the press. With an eye to business she has discovered herself when, as Sir Charles Baryle would say, the boom is on the rige. Let her have another anchor to the windward by sending the author of this glorious jaunt to Washington.

HENRY E. ELAND, Pittsburg Dispatch: This was my first visit to the south and it has confirmed the very pleasant opinions I had previousty formed of this section. There was absolutely nothing wanting to make our trip nerfectly enjoyable. The harbecue, be-had previously formed of this section. There was absolutely nothing wanting to make our trip perfectly enjoyable. The barbecue, being a novelty, especially struck my fancy.

Louis J. Lova, New York Press: Augusta's jewels are her pretty daughters. For beauty they surpass those of any city I have ever visited. These fair maidens, together with the enterprise and unbounded hospitality of their fathers and hyrathers, our his control of their fathers.

with the enterprise and unbounded hospitality of their fathers and brothers, oughtsoon to entitle Augusta to the name, "The Empire City of the South."

W. A. HAMLTON, Brooklyn Times: I can best express my feelings over the treatment received in the city of Augusta by saying that no future invitation will ever be refused that no future invitation will ever be refused by me.

F. P. Ferris, Baltimore Morning Herald:
The beautiful and thriving city of Augusta has earned the lasting good will of the Washington correspondents. Certainly no guests were ever more hospitably entertained. Our visit has been a most delightful one in every respect and we will watch Augusta's progress with most kindly interest.

N. E. Annin, Philadelphia Ledger: There remains the ineffaceable impression of singing spindles and magnificent manufactories of an old southern community expanding under a spindles and magnificent manufactories of an old southern community expanding under a new commercial atmosphere, of domestic repose and business push, of the warm and bounteous hospitality of a people schooled in the art of making others happy, of the bright eyes and graceful charms of a womanhood unexcelled in a nation where woman reaches her fullest development. The beautiful, enterprising and hospitable city of Augusta bids fair in the fruition of her promise to surpass the performance of the best of our great industrial centres.

dustrial centres. "
CLIFFORD ROSE, Jersey City News: Au-CLIFFORD ROSE, Jersey City News: Augusta captured the correspondents as she always captures her guests, and at the present rate of development she'll soon capture all the capital of the country that's lying around loose waiting an opportunity for investment. Georgia is truly the empire state of the south, and Augusta the Eden of pretty women and harhecues.

and Augusta the Eden of pretty women and barbecues.
WALLER WELLMAN, Chicago Herald: I have three daughters; when I get home I shall change all their names to Augusta.
H. W. Spofford, Fort Worth Gazette: An epoch in life's history, the memory of which will never fade. Her citizens and her fair name will not be forgotten by the press. May her future prosperity be complete. A barbecue is the summum bonum of an epicure's desire.

barbecue is the summum bonum of an epicure's desire.

James R. Young, Philadelphia Star: My visit to Augusta was the first time I had been in that section of our country known as the cotton states in twenty years. What I saw in the progress her people had made—the fact that the city was abreast with the most advanced communities, was a revelation to me.

H. L. Merrick, Washington Post: The hospitality of the people, the signs of prosperity and the scarcity of water.

James L. Taylon, Richmond and Danville empire state of the south.

A. W. Dunn, St. Paul Pioneer Press: This empire state of the south.

A. W. Dunn, St. Paul Pioneer Press: This is my first visit to the south and it is useless to say I am pleased with the country, delighted with the hospitality of Augusta's citizens and charmed with the Georgia ladies. In point of natural resources, rail and waterways, I can scarcely see how Augusta is excelled by any inland city, while in manufactures she rivals New England cities. The enterprise exhibited on every hand is one of the surprises that greets the northerner and is an evidence that the new south is a reality.

WILLIAM H. Young, night manager, Washington, D. C.: Sufficient for me to say that I most heartily endorse and approve all that has been written of the most delightful and enjoyable trip, and if filed early, it will afford me extreme pleasure to transmit all the copy without an instant delay, over the wires.

F. A. MARKLE, Evening Wisconsin: Mil-

most on this trip to Augusta, I would say that the people and all Georgians I met are most warm-hearted, most generous and most hospitable. Augusta lacka nothing in beauty and natural resources. There can be no question that the attention of the industrial and financial world will very soon be attracted to the grand aduantages of Augusta, and all who visit her will not fail to find the qualities in her people of which I have spoken.

W. M. Handy, Philadelphia News: If merit counts for ought, Augusta is destined to be one of the great cities of the United States for hospitality assuredly is extremely meritoricus, and in that respect, in my brief experience, I have found no equal of the Philadelphia of Georgia.

W. R. Bell, Pittsburg Leader: The hespitality of Georgians is only surpassed by their roast shoat and barbecue hash. May prosperity ever be with them is the earnest wish of one who partook of that hospitality which only the people of the south, particularly Georgians, are capable of bestowing upon strangers.

E. S. Conner, Philadelphia Times: Hos-

E. S. CONNER, Philadelphia Times: Hos-

E. S. CONNER, Philadelphia Times: Hospitality such as no other state can furnish. Women unequaled in beauty, the sweeping democratic majority and barbecned chicken.

M. F. Ihmsen, Pittsburg Post: I only wish it were possible to transport the entire population of western Pennsylvania to Augusta for a brief visit. I think the eyes of our republican friends would be opened. You know we have some incorrigible people in our section who persist in thinking that the southerners are politically bigoted, oppressive and lacking in the qualities that might endear them to northerners. I see what a mistake such an idea is. The hospitality we received was boundless, while the prosperity manifested was a revelation. I can better express my feelings by stating that I would like to live in Augusta. When a Pittsburger says that, whole volumes are meant.

E. E. Roderns, Chicago Times: The visit to Augusta has been to me a most instructive and charming experience; instructive to Augusta has been to me a most instructiv and charming experience; instructive by a sight of the industrial achievements of the largest cotton-manufacturing centre of this south, and charming because of the exquisite kindness of representatives of the most splendid kindness of representatives of the most splendid race of gentlemen any society ever produced. E. J. Girson, Philadelphia Press—What surprised me was the extent of the manufacturing interests of the city, and the splendid water power, which offers facilities for great development in the future in the same direction. My mind was filled with the thought, on coming away, that if I live the average span of life and revisit Augusta near its close, I shall find it in the front rank of the great manufacturing cities of the world. As to the genuine hospitality of the people and their successful efforts to make our visit a happy one I need not dwell. It is one of those things that goes without saying.

one I need not dwell. It is one of those things that goes without saying.

GEORGE H. WALKER, Cleveland Leader: The people of Augusta evidently believe that it is notall of life to live, or all of death to die. Their generous hospitality is only exceeded by the charming manners and the beauty of their ladies. Father Time never seemed more rapid in his flight than during the past two days, and but for Colonel Taylor's schedule, we would gladly have lingered longer. We have all learned to know in realty what a joy forever it is to be a stranger within the gates forever it is to be a stranger within the gate of a southern home. E. W. BARRETT.

THE E. T., V. & G. AGAIN TO THE FRONT. Phenomenal Time on Fruit Train, Port

Another train load consisting of twenty carleads of bananas, from Port Tampa to Chicago, by the E. T., V. and G. railway, fast fruit line, passed through Atlanta Saturday afternoon, making the unrivaled time from Port Tampa to Chattanooga in forty-four hours, breaking the record of all previous trains, which were unexcelled and unapproachable. To illustrate the remarkable run made by this train on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, it is only necessary to say that the schedule is not an isolated one. From Jesup to Macon, 147 miles, six hours. From Macon to Atlanta, ninety miles, three hours and twenty minutes. Tampa to Chicago.

147 miles, six hours. From Maconto-Atlanta, ninety miles, three hours and twenty minutes. From Atlanta to Chattanooga, 152 miles, seven hours. This time needs no comment, but speaks for itself. This achievement in the handling of perishable property by the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia rallway is so far above and beyond anything that has ever been accomplished by any line in this territory, that it must be a matter of deep interest and congratulation to all shippers of perishable property. The schedule from Chattanooga to Chicago is less than thirty-six hours, thus making the time from Port Tampa to Chicago in eighty hours, and from Jamaica, West in eighty hours, and from Jamaica, West Indies, to Chicago in less than nine days. This clearly demonstrates the wisdom of Mr. H. B. Plant, president of the famous Plant system, in inaugurating this line, and will undoubtedly result in the West Indies and South American trade seaking, the port of Part Tampa. result in the West Indies and South American trade seeking the port of Port Tampa which his sagacity and inspiration have seen fit to take hold of. It will also clearly demonstrate the foresight of his general manager, Mr. J. H. Ahern, than whom there is no abler man in the transportation of fruit. Our fellow-townsman, Mr. J. J. Falvey, who has ripe experience in the handling of fruit, received on Saturday afternoon three car loads ripe experience in the natural of the care of the ceived on Saturday afternoon three car loads of bananas from Port Tampa, leaving the latter port on Thursday afternoon and delivered here for market on Saturday afternoon.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, ever alive to the interests of shippers of melons, peaches and other fruits, are prepared to give service which cannot be reached by competition, and which alone must be gratifying to shippers and redound to their benefit, enabling them to get their perishable properly to market in prime condition. This realizes the battle which The Construction has been making and agitating for several years in the interest of fruit growers.

SPECIAL EXCURSION TRAIN GREAT AUCTION SALE

68 - Edgewood Park Lots - 68

Thursday, May 8th, 2 P. M. Free Ride For All

LADIES ESPECIALLY INVITED. "Edgewood Park" is on the north side of the Georgia R. R., west of Mayson's avenue, east of Rilgore's residence and south of the Palmer tract of loacres, recently sold, and between the home of Charles W. Smith, Esq., and the Georgia R. R. Edgewood avenue runs centrally through the property, Mayson's avenue is its eastern boundary. Decatur street and the Georgia R. R. its southern boundary and Mchendon street its northern'line. A large sum of money has been expended to make all the lots level, to grade and open the streets and otherwise beautify the park. Georgia R. R. trains now runs and stops at the southeast corner of the park at Mayson's crossing, and at an early date, it is believed, street cars will run through it. Stores and postofice are just across the street, and Mayson's academy and Professor Acal's military school are very convenient. The social advantages here are equal to the best. Suburban homes here are indeed desirable. The terms of the sale are positive to the lighest bidder without reserve. No by-bids allowed. One-fourth cash, remainder in 1, 2 and 3 years, with 8 per cent interest.

We will keep you cool with ice lemonade, will treat you tarily at the sale and sell you lots so that you can build homes or make money. Take a free ride with us on our special train next Thursday. Look out for plats.

SAM'L W. GOODE & CO.

$125 to $175 each, payable one-third cash, balance 6, 12 and 13 months, 8 per cent interest, for choice lots on Curran, Grove and Hampton streets, near Marietta street. These lots are just east of Marietta street, at the terminus of the car line, in a good neighborhood, and where property is rapidly enhancing in value. They are high and level. An electric car line will be built within a few hundred feet, this summer, and then they will sell for twice what we ask for them now. Beautiful tracts of from one to five acres in Ormewood park, on the new dummy line to the confederate home, and within ½ mile of Grant park and Little Switzerland. The finest suburban property on the south side, and entirely free of any objectionable surroundings. Special inducements and easy terms made for those who purchas, and agree to build homes.

$400 each for a number of very desirable Edgewood lots, 75x185 feet each. Part of the Hanye property. High and level, and right at the railroad, and in the very best part of that delightful suburb. Very easy terms for those who will build attractive homes.

$65 per acre of 11½ acres very near the new belt railroad, and about 4½ miles out. A good building site and running water. Easy terms.

$12,000 for beautiful tract of 14 vacant lots, 50x200 feet each to a 30 foot street. All lie well, all front Grant park and the dummy line, and are right at Georgia avenue, in a good neighborhood. Two are corner lots. Money in this, Terms; $3,000 cash, balance I and 2 years, 8 per cent interest.

$200 per acre for 100 acre tract very near the new belt railroad and the Marietta wagon road, which is paved to the property. About ½ cleared and ½ very heavily timbered. Running water. Reastiful building sites. Very easy terms.

$1,100 for beautiful, vacant corner lot 100x400 feet. Five minutes walk from Grant park, Little Switzerland and the dummy line, and on the main drive to the confederate home. Beautiful shade-trees. Alley in rear. New houses now being b south side for the money. Very easy terms will be given.

$225 for beautiful, high and shady lot, 50x120 feet to alley, inside city limits, and near Capitol avenue. Very cheap. Easy terms. Call quick and get it. It is completely covered with thick oak grove.

THE TRAVELING MEN.

ATLANTA BIDS THEM A WELCOME.

rocession this Morning-Meet-ing of the Convention.

Atlanta is in the hands of the traveling men oday.

The first delegation of the convention of the Southern Travelers' association arrived yes-terday afternoon at six o'clock, and two hours later the streets were full of gentlemen wear-ing various colored badges showing the differ-

All day the Atlanta branch of the association was conspicuous on the streets. They were a white satin badge with a blue and red stripe and the words, "2nd annual convention S. T. A., Atlanta branch, 1890; Atlanta, Ga., May 5th to 8th" printed in gold letters.

At 10 o'clock over one hundred and fifty of Atlanta's representative traveling men met at the chamber of commerce, and headed by Vice-President Lieberman and Secretary Branan, marched to the First Baptist church. Seats immediately in front of the reading desk had been reserved for them, and Dr. Hawthorne preached a sermon specially calculated to impress commercial men.

He expatiated on the sin of covetousness and told his hearers the great difficulty which men possessed of great wealth frequently found in making a proper use of what they had labored so earnestly to obtain. Dr. Hawthorne spoke in the most impressive words of the dreadful way women and children are overworked in the northern factories.

Slavery, he said, was over in the south, and he fervently thanked God for it, but in the factories of the north women and children were forced to work interminable hours in order to obtain a fair pittance, and that, he considered, a worse slavery than ever existed

When the services were over the Atlanta drummers separated to meet again at 4 o'clock at the Kimball house.

The Macon train was one hour late and it therefore happened that the Augusta delega-tion was the first to arrive. When the train stopped Chairman Allen, of the reception com-mittee, and seventy-five of the members of the association were there to welcome the visitors. The car in which the Augusta delegation arrived was gayly decorated with flags, and a long banner nailed to each side of the car bore the inscription, "Augusta Branch, Travelers' Association-WE ARE THE PEOPLE."

When a line had been formed, with Mr. J. Jones Gardner, president of the Augusta branch, and Hon. J. H. Fleming, the attorney of the general body, at the head, the dele gates were marched to the Kimball house. Augusta will be represented in the convention by J. Jones Gardner, president; E. B. Pilcher, secretary and treasurer; W. A. Camp, J. H. Williams, James T. May, O. S. Lee, J. W. Hillis, H. N. Reid, C. W. Davis and S. P. Weisiger. Besides these gentlemen over thirty-five representative traveling men will take part in the festivities.

As soon as the Augusta men had been quartered, the reception committee returned to the depot and awaited the arrival of the Macon

When at last it came in the two rear cars were handsomely decorated—the first with the inscription "Macon Post," and the second with the words "Savannah Branch."

That the Macon car was decorated was owing entirely to the exertions of Mr. C. A. Lewis, and its handsome appearance was a plain evidence of his good work. The Macon delegation is composed of J. Van, president; Jake Menko, ex-president; Charles Lewis, John Walton, George Hoag, A. W. Kennedy, John T. Coates, George W. Coates, M. B. Baker, secretary and treasurer, and D. H. Clark, state director.

The Savannah branch will be very largely represented, but just who the delegates will be was not disclosed last night. The Savannah gentlemen were handsomely entertained at Macon, and afterwards they drew up the following resolutions: Macon, Ga., May 4, 1890.—Savannah delega-tion to Southern Travelers Association conven-

The doctor was one of the most popular physicians in the city and was a thorough Christian gentleman, well beloved by a large circle of friends.
He came to Atlanta many years ago, and built up a fine practice, which he enjoyed up to the time of his last illness.
He was forty-two years of age, and leaves a

THIS PROPERTY IS EXCEEDINGLY DESIRable because of its proximity to the very heart of the city. They are 150 feet from Pryor street, a few blocks from the Kimball house, on the same street, right on the dummy; convenient to the union depot, Whitehall and Washington streets. In fact, is so central that they are convenient to everything you could wish. The surroundings are being rapidly improved by large expenditures that will greatly enhance the value of these lots. There are but few vacant lots between this block and the center of the city. Examine for yourself, and be convinced that this is the place to put your money. Why? Because it has annually enhanced in value for the last thirty years. Is there anything in the world to stop the enhancement? No, but a great deal to continue it more ravidly than ever. Just the place for residences for those who desire to be convenient to business on Marietta, Peachtree, or any intermediate streets. Here you would be independent of street cars, for you would be right at churches, stores, schools and the various industries near this property. Nice, clean would be right at churches, stores, schools and the various industries near this property. Nice, clean cottages would rent to good thrifty and industrious tenents forever, and at proper prices. Here is the place to make a first-class investment. The improvements now going on around these blocks are bound to enhance the value of everything upon these streets. You can't make a mistake in buying any of these lots, because they are properly located. People are moving into Atlanta from all over the country, especially from the cold and flooded districts. New factories are going up all an over the country, especially from the cold and flooded districts. New factories are going up all the time, while the old ones are constantly increasing their capacity. These new comers must have homes; they have got the money and will have them, and of course must pay four prices in the future. Now is your chance to buy cheap; $1,000 invested in this property now may be worth two or three thousand in a year or so. It is now admitted that no place with the United States is attracting population and means like Atlanta. Then place your money in central real estate like this while it is cheap. You will certainly be handsomely repaid. Alexander street is the short link connecting Feachtree and Marietta streets; it is broad, straight and beautifully graded. Orme street leads into Peters Park and is destined to be one of the most pleasant drives from the center of one of the most pleasant drives from the center of the city to the park. Call and get your plat and be ready for the sale.

Worth Over $100,000.

THIS VALUABLE, BEAUTIFUL AND CHOICE property is upon the market for the purpose of paying debts and distribution, otherwise you could not obtain one inch of it. The three large level lots on Peachtree have no equals in the city. Look at the grand old original forest trees stretching out their graceful limbs to shade and protect the deep green grass, and you cannot help wanting one of these, the best on the street.

The valuable home on Houston street, No. 46, is close in and convenient. Such large lots are very scarce near the center of the city. Now, where ean you find any central real estate for sale? I know of none but thus on the corner of Broad and Walton streets. On Marietta street, justa jump from these brick stores, we all concede that the vacant ground is well worth

$1,900 PER FRONT FOOT.

This is almost as valuable, and yet such property is enhancing all the time. Why? Becanse the great increase in population and in money increase the demand. There is no boom in Atlanta. Just a natural progressive increase. This and nothing more. Capitalists and investors will please call at my office for plats and information. The Peachtree and Juniper street property will be sold first at the court house. Then I will sell the elegant home, No. 46 Houston street, saving the dest sert—the central property right in the heart of the city—for the last.

JUST WHAT YOU WANT. It is what you want. The Louisville and Nashville system is one of the most prosperous systems in the south. They now have over four thousand miles of road in the south, touching the richest fields of coal and iron in Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Kentucky They have through connection with Chicago, and with Charleston as their eastern terminal this great system would have just such a port desire. It will compete with any port on the South Atlantic coast. "The Louisville and Nashville," said Mr. Howell, "have been thinking of going to Port Royal, but if a connection can be made between Charleston and Atlanta, there is no doubt that the Louisville and Nashville will come to Charleston."
Since Mr. Howell's talk, the rumor has gained ground that the Louisville and Nash-ville will purchase the South Carolina rail-read, and that the connecting link between Atlanta and Warrenton will be built.

Railroad Fight in Charleston. Railroad Fight in Charleston.

Charliston, S. C., May 4.—[Special.]—The executive committee of the chamber of commerce had a meeting yesterday and adopted resolutions urging the city council to grant to the East Shore terminal the right to build railroad tracks through the streets. The general impression is that the Atlantic Coast Line autherities are opposing the new company, which is backed by wealthy capitalists in the north. The owners of the two cotton compresses, which are situated at some dispany, which is backed by wealthy capitalists in the north. The owners of the two cotton compresses, which are situated at some distance from the proposed belt line, are also said to be opposing the project. A special meeting of the city council will be held on Tuesday next to consider the matter. There is a good deal of excitement in the city about it, and the coming meeting of council promises

THE PROFIT IN CABBAGE.

The Establishment of a Canning Factory in Milledgeville. MILLEGEVILLE, Ga., May 4.-[Special.]-A canning factory, with a five thousand dollar outfit, will be in operation in Milledgeville during the next sixty days. The company was organized yesterday, with the following officers: President, R. W. Roberts; secretary and treasurer, Joseph E. Pottle; directors, G. D. Case, J. L. Sibley, J. A. Horne, R. W. Roberts and Joseph E. Pottle. The company has bought the land and buildings just south of the Milledgeville ice factory, and will put them in order for the enterprise as soon as possible. They will can every kind of fruit and vegetable raised through this section, and will add an evaporator, in the summer, for drying fruits of different kinds. The company is without a name at present, but "Elm City Canning company" has been suggested, and that name will probably be adapted.

Your correspondent has made mention of the splendid profits derived from cabbage and vegetable raising by several parties through this section, and The Constitution has made that line a feature of its work in southern development. Mr. Eiy Harrell, of this court, was in the directed daywith a region. this section, and The Constitution has made that line a feature of its work in southern development. Mr. Ely Harrell, of this county, was in the city vesterday with a wagon load of vegetables, brought from his farm near here, that were superior to anything brought from the foreign markets. He was accosted by Tar Constitution correspondent and the statement he gave as to the value of the vegetable yield is amazing when compared with that of cotton. His leading product is cabbage and from his cabbage patch last year he cleared an average of $300 an acre. He has doubled its capacity this year and given his attention to other vegetables that he has not tried before. He stated yesterday that an acre of land, well manured, would yield six thousand heads of cabbage that would average ten cents each, or six hundred dollars from an acre of ground. Five years ago he did not own a foot of land and was without money. He rented a small patch and sowed it in cabbage. The yield was phenomenal, and in a year or two he bought the land and began raising vegetables on a larger scale. To say he is independent and is actually growing rich off a crop that has been long neglected in the clamor for "king cotton," Mr. Harrell is simply "one out of many;" there are other farmers in Baldwin county who have reaped similar results. The Vinsons have given their time for several years to truck-raising, and have made money rapidly. Jones and Bethune, in the northern part of the county, long since discovered that there were better profits in turnips, rutabagas, cabbage, etc., than in other products, of which the markets were already overstocked. The estabishment of a canning factory here will increase the demand for these products and diversity in this line will be larger in the future that inspires them now, in less than ten years there will be hardly half the county, loar since the farmers have already begun to extend the variety of their products until nearly every tropical plant is raised in abundance in Baldwin county. If the same spirit less quantities. In the meantime, cabbage is on top here and the men who raise them are rapidly amassing fortunes.

This is exactly what Charleston wants. Let her follow Brunswick's example, and when your people make up their minds to have a through and direct western connection Charleston will not only double in population and business, but will achieve even greater results than this. I think there is hope for Charleston to do this without any great out-lay of money. The Louisville and Nashville owns half of the lease of the Georgia railroad from Atlanta to Augusta, and by looking at the maps of Georgia and South Carolina it will be seen that a railroad from about Warrenton on the Georgia road, directly to Charleston in

In an interview he says:

Mrs. McTeer Files a Bill Against the Agent.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 4.—[Special.]—John Allison and Charles Nolson, counselors for Mrs. Mollie N. McTeer, wife of Charles E. McTeer, by her next friend, A. R. Nelson, citizen of Knox county, fled a bill in the chancery court teday against B. Lanier, Isaac Reese, A. R. Duncan, Hugh McCrea and W. L. Granderry, trustee, of Davidson county, and A. F. Garrett, of Knox county, and the Merchants and Traders' Produce exchange and others. It is charged that A. F. Garrett was not only the agent of the bucket-shop at Knox-ville, but shared in the profits and earnings. It is charged that Charles E. McTeer from time to time for the past ninety days had placed on deposit with said firm through their agent, V. F. Gossett, various sums of money, aggregating between $13,500 and $14,000. It is charged that on the 12th day of April, 1890, McTeer was on the winning side of the deal with the bucket-shop, and there was then due him between $11,000 and $12,000, but defendants refused to allow him to close the deal. No claim is made for these winnings, as the complainants recognize the illegality of such a claim.

Complainant attacks the assignment made on April 14th, and charges that it is fraudulent CHARLESTON, S. C., May 4.—[Special.]— Editor Evan P. Howell, of The Constitution, in his speech at the Travelers' Protective association banquet on Thursday night, struck the key-note of the railroad problem, with which Charleston is now wrestling, when he said that Atlanta and Charleston should be "All Charleston needs to make it one of the greafest and most prosperous cities in the entire south, is to have some connection with one of the great systems that leads to the immense western country, of which Charleston one of the best harbors on the entire South claim.

Complainant attacks the assignment made on April 14th, and charges that it is fraudulent in law and in fact. The creditors named in the assignment, it is charged, are confederates, and severally liable for the debts of the company. Complainant charges that the amounts claimed to be due Gossett and others are winnings, and that to that extent they are illegal, fictitious and void. Complainant prays for an attachment on W. L. Granderry, and that he be compelled to disclose the cash assets of the concern. She also prays for cash assets of the concern. She also prays for an attachment against the real estate of de-fendants, and if necessary that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the real estate.

Arrested for Express Robbery. THOMASVILLE, Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—A telegram from Monticello, Fla., caused the arrest of A. H. Barbour in Savannah yesterday morning. He is charged with the express robbery at Monticello, of which a full account appeared in Saturday's Constitution. Barbour is express messenger between Monticello and Drafton, on the Florida Central and Peninsular railway, and suspicion was drawn to and Dratton, on the Florida Central and Pen-insular railway, and suspicion was drawn to him on account of the manner in which he flourished money about after the robbery, and also his unexpected and sudden trip from home. Barbour has always moved in good society and was considered perfectly straight, and his arrest caused considerable surprise and talk. Sheriff Simplains has gone to Savannah after him.

MAYOR GRANT'S REPLY

TOTTHE TESTIMONY OF WITNESS

HIS CONNECTION WITH THE CROKERS

Was the Godfather of One of Croker's Children and Presented the Little One Sums of Money.

NEW YORK, May 4 .- The senate committee on cities, of which Mr. Fassett is chairman, sat again in this city yesterday to hear further de-velopments concerning the workings of city departments. As it was known that Mayor Grant would be a witness to exculpate himpelf from the charges made against him by Patrick McCann the committee room was filled to the doors. Among those present were Cor-poration Counsel Dare, Pawnbroker McAleenan, who is said to have assisted Mr. Grant in political crisis, ex-Congressman John J. Adams, John S. Townsend and several alder-men and politicians. Mayor Grant was present with W. Bourke Cockran, his counsel.

Witness McCann, whose testimony recently caused such a sensation, again took the stand, and reiterated some of his former statements and added something to them. He was then cross-examined by Bourke Cockran. Witness said he had been on the best of terms with Croker, his brother-in-law, until Mayor Grant came in between them.

Cockran wanted to ask a few questions, and he got strong answers. McCann said:

"Croker has been misled by his advisersmen who have driven him from his home and family today. I refer to Mr. Grant. I think it is a digrace to the city that a man like Grant should be its n ayor."

Question—Are you friendly toward Mr. Grant? Witness McCann, whose testimony recently

Grant?
Anwser—I have an unfriendly feeling toward him. I consider him incompetent. My feeling toward him would not prevent me from telling the truth under oath.
Witness said that John B. Halloran had told him the $180,000 mentioned in his former retingung had been returned to these whomes.

testimony had been returned to those who contributed it on the New Year's following. He had received no inducement to give testi-

Witness said he could make charges which witness said he could make charges which he did not care to put forward voluntarily at present, and that "the less those gentlemen have to say the better for themselves."

When pressed by Mr. Irvin he admitted having had a conversation with Mr. Grant about his connection with the Broadway railroad bribery in 1884.

Mayor Grant here arose and said he wanted McCann to withold nothing he knew concerning him.

Witness then told of a day when he, Grant and Alderman Mooney had been to a lawyer's office together, and Mr. Grant, referring to the Broadway railroad bribery and his allegations to Croker, said, "If it had not been for his advice I'd have been in that deal with the other fellows," meaning, as witness explained, the aldermen who had escaped the bribe.

Mr. Grant, he said, subsequentsy repeated the same thing in the presence of Mrs. McCann and Mrs. Croker, and witness had a conversation in January or February, 1885, about $180,000 Croker brought to his store about a month before. She told him that Croker had brought home a large sum of money about that time; that she sat up at night to guard it until he arrived at the house. Witness had heard nothing so show that it was the same-money.

Ex-Mayor Edson testified that Mayor Grant hadnot been a candidate for commissioner of public works and that the Tammany candidate was John McQuade.

Mayor Grant then took the stand and denied all of McCann's statements, so far as they affected him. He knew nothing about the $180,000 McCann had spoken of. So far as he knew, McCann's testimony on that subject was utterly untrue. He had never been a candidate for commissioner of public works. He had never contributed any sum of money to the fund to secure his appointment to that office. He never contributed to any fund to secure any one's appointment to that office.
Questioned as to his relation to Richard Croker and his family, Mayor Grant said he had been very intimate with Croker and his family.

When he assumed that responsibility, as he had no nearer relative than cousin, and no other obligations, he had determined to make some substantial provision for her. On one occasion he had given her $5,000, and subsequently $4,000 or $5,000. He never gave her any other present except such as he gave to her and Croker's other children at Christmas and other such occasions. The money was given to the child in the presence of the father and mother. The presents were free, and without any understanding or agreement, or in consideration of his election as sheriff.

THE PUTNAM FAIR

To Establish a Guano Factory and a Cotton Seed Oil Mill.

Thomas county alliance held a mass meeting at the court-honse yesterday. Between 200 and 300 members were in attendance, and this would have been much larger if the farmers had not been busy at home. The main question before the meeting was that of the guano factory and oil mill. No decision was reached, though the matter was discussed in all its hearings; it is likely that the oil mill feature will be dropped, but the determination to build the guano factory remains unspoken. The question will be definitely settled at the next county alliance meeting, which will assemble in this city, Thursday, July 3d.

Weather Crop Bulletin.

Weather Crop Bulletin. GTON, May 4.—The week ending May 30 has been slightly cooler than usual in New Eng. land and New York, the lake region and gul cess in the south Atlantic states, Tennessee, the Ohio valley, northern Virginia, southern Pennsylvenia, Maryland, Delaware and the extreme southern portion of New York. The week has been moderately warm in the northwest, while from Dakota westward to the Pacific coast unusually high temperature prevailed.

The weather was unfavorable in Texas and on low lands some replanting will be necessary. Crops are looking well in Louisiana, except in the fooded districts. Rainfall was very unequally distributed in Mississippi, and excesses in some parts will prove injurious. The low temperature was also rather unfavorable to cotton.

In the south Atlantic states cotton and corn are reported in good condition, but more rain is needed.

WORTH SUPERIOR COURT. Trial of Several Murder Cases-A Verdict o

Ty Ty, Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—A very important session of the superior court has just closed in Worth county this week. Two large murder cases have been disposed of besides a quantity of small business. The case of the State vs. James Hornesby charged with mur-quantity of small business. The case of the State vs. James Hornesby charged with murdering the blind peddler, in April, 1889, was disposed of with a verdict of not guilty. The state was represented by D. H. Pope and J. D. Pope with Solicitor-General Spence, and the defense by W. A. Harris, J. W. Walters and W. T. Jones. Every point was ably fought on both sides, and consumed two days with the trial. The deceased was a blind Irish peddler, known as George Carrol, who made his headquarters at Albany and sold cheap jewelry and small articles. He was found in April last in a lime sink pond between, Acree and Gin Town, in a state of decomposition, and was identified by the clothing he had on. His skull was crushed and a quantity of bird shot was in his head; his pack of wares, jewelry, spectucles etc., was found near him, where some one had burned it, leaving only such things as were not combustible. It was a very dastardly piece of work. It was shown from the evidence that the old man could not see the road at times, as he would often walk through ponds and places of water, where he could easily have surrounded it if he had had the use of his eyesight. Suspicion rested on young Hornesby as the party who did the deed, as he was seen about an hour behind the peddler at the last house he passed inquiring for the blind peddler, and had a gun with him, and told parties that the peddler had sold him a watch that had stopped, and he was going after him to make him take it back or furnish him money to have it fixed. It was all circumstantial evidence against him, which was met and explained to the jury, so that they were not long in arriving at a verdict, after a very concise and impartial charge by Judge Bowen. Withal, it was a most important case, and everyone is surprised that it did not consume more time. The other murder case was Burrell Pearson, charged with the murder of Jack Ford, in this county some time ago. The grand jury failed to find a true bill against him and ended it shortly. it shortly.

APPLING, Ga., May 4.-[Special.]-A. C. Malphus attempted suicide in the jail about 10 o'clock. He was committed to jail on the 6th of April last for bigamy and sued out a writ of habeas corpus, which was set for a hearing before the ordinary on the 19th of April. On that day he professed to be too sick to appear in court and the hearing was postponed until

During the day, about 10 o'clock, Charley Summons, colored, a prisoner in jail, gave the alarm that Malphus had hung himself. Sheriff L. L. Magruder, who was in the courthouse at the time, ran to his dwelling, about 200 yards distant, to get the jail keys, returned and found Malphus hanging from the railing of the stairs in the jail. He was cut down apparently dead, but under treatment of Dr. B. B. A PRINTER ARRESTED

For an Offense of Which He Was Not Guilty.

ALBANY, Ga., May 4.—[Special.]—Friday a dispatch came from Mr. Denham, express agent at Monticello, to the chief of police, to arrest a young man with dark hair and blue eyes, charged with robbing the express office there of $117 last night. Officer Dunlafy arrested Mr. John D. Shaw, of Monticello, a typo, who, after working a few days with the News and Advertiser was about to take the midnight. Advertiser, was about to take the midnight train for Americus. He had the fatal blue train for Americus. He had the fatal blue eye and dark hair, and answered the imperfect description. Mr. Shaw had worked with Denham, the Monticello editor, brother of the express agent. His printing office was in some way connected with the robbery. Shaw was much excited. He was jailed, and after remaining all night in kmbo, was released this morning, a telegram being received from the Florida sheriff, stating that the right man had been arrested at Savannah, whither he had fled. Shaw is indignant and threatens suit.

By the way, I see that a young man has been arrested and imprisoned in St. Petersburg for having in his possession the works of Herbert Spencer! Darwin is another English author whose works are interdicted by the Russian authorities.

I was asking the venerable bookseller, E. W. Stibbs, who was the most indefatigable reader of books in London, and he answered: "William E Gladstone, unquestionably. Everything that comes to his net is fish. He is the biggest book buyer we have—not that he indulges in rare and costly books, but that he keeps himself fully informed of everything in current literature. As soon as a new took appears, he buys it—no matter whether it be a noyel or a history or a philosophical tractice. cal treatise. He is not a rich man, yet he spends large sums of money for books; his library must be a large and curious one."

1. Atlanta, like nearly all cities, is rapidly building up and extending westward, and will continue to do so.

2. The three most important railroads entering Atlanta—the main feeders over which most of our supplies, especially coal, wood, timber, lumber, brick and other manufacturing supplies comenter the city on the west side, and run together very near this property.

3. Nearly all the factories, shops and manufactories of Atlanta are now and will be located in the western portion of the city, and they will continue to extend westward along and near the railroads over which their supplies come. Such is the natural and ineritable result.

4. Hence the population, manufacturing and commercial interests, and wealth also, of Atlanta will surely extend westward and cause the western portion of the city to fill up rapidly, and the value of the property to increase wonderfully and rapidly. Therefore this fine property will prove to be safe and very profitable investments.

5. For homes this property offers as many attractions as any in the vicinity. It is elevated, commands fine views of the city, is perfectly healthy and pleasant, is favored with pure, fresh air and water, is near streetcars, railroads, stores, schools, churches, and nearly all the factories and shops of the city, and is just one and three-quarter miles from the carshed, the actual center of the city, being just outside the city limits, where it is exempt from city taxes, yet by the new streets that have been and will be opened s raight to the property, it is a very short walk to the business and central portion of the city, and will run just outside this property and will add much to its value.

7. A movement is now on foot to open Chestnut street along the east side of this property from Marietta street and Bellwood straight through to West End and Westview cemetery, and it is thought that street cars will be run across from this section of the city to all the way around through the center of the city.

8. The location of this property renders i go all the way around through the center of the city.

8. The location of this property renders it absolutely certain that it will -build up and soon become very valuable. We have no doubt but that the Marietta and North Georgia railroad will have to come into the city across this property. It must advance rapidly in value because of its convenience to the business and manufacturing portions of the city. Examine and think a little, and you will be convinced that this fine property will soon double in value, and is the location to buy, either for homes or to make money on. You can't put your money into anything that will be safeg or more profitable. Atlanta property increases in value every year, and the safest, quickest and best way to make money is to buy and sell lots. Titles absolutely perfect. Terms, one-fourth cash, and balance six, twelve and eighteen months, with interest at eight per cent. Free ride on special Marietta street cars at 2:30 p. m., sharp. Everybody invited.

The Atlanta City Brewing Co. Ahead

THE FIRST PREMIUM For the Best Quality of Beer

To which fact we point with just pride. With vastly increased facilities and best improve ments we are prepared to supply the increasing demand for our justly celebrated Lager Beer, brewed by our company, put up in kegs, bottles of half pints, pints and quarts, delivered to any part of the city or shipped to any point in Georgia and the south.

Best Canadian Malt, choice Bohemian, Bavarian and California Hops only are used for the manufacture of our Beer, and which are free for inspection to all at our brewery, corner Harris street and Courtland avenue.

Orders taken and promptly filled at No. 8. West Wall street. Telephone 1249.

We solicit the patronage of the trade throughout the south.
